JAPS LOST 20 OF 80 WARSHIPS IN MIDWAY CLASH

Navy Releases Full Story of Engagement; U. S. Carrier, Destroyer Sunk.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 15—Japan's invasion armada ran into an American ambush in the battle of Midway, official reports disclosed today.

A communique last night gave the first detailed account of the battle and a supplemental report told how a naval task force lay in ambush and struck hard with carrier planes when army and navy shore-based attacks had slowed the enemy fleet.

The great size of the armada Japan sent to assault Midway in hopeful prelude to conquest of Hawaii was disclosed for the first time—86 ships. Official records gave this result of the battle:

Japanese Losses—20 ships sunk or damaged including four aircraft carriers sunk and three battleships hit; 275 planes destroyed, and 4,800 men killed or drowned.

American Losses—The 19,900-ton aircraft carrier Yorktown put out of action, the destroyer Hammann sunk, an undisclosed number of planes destroyed, and 92 officers and 215 enlisted men lost. Loss of the destroyer and damage to an aircraft carrier had been reported previously, but this was the first time their names were given.

The immediate result of the battle was that the safety of the vital Hawaiian area, the American west coast and the Panama Canal were at least temporarily secured.

Detailed Story

The navy issued in exultant detail its first story of the superb acts of devotion mentioned by Prime Minister Churchill in parliament July 2, when he told for the first time that from some successful attacks on Japanese carriers only one (American) aircraft returned out of 10.

One action the navy cited was by navy torpedo squadron No. 8—30 men and 15 planes led by Lieut. Cmdr. John Charles Waldron, 41, of Fort Pierre, S. D. This squadron successfully attacked the enemy's main battle force without fighter support and in spite of blistering anti-aircraft and fighter opposition. All 15 planes were lost. Only one man of the squadron, Ensign G. H. Gay, of Houston, Texas, survived.

Another deed of valor was attributed to Major Lofton R. Henderson of Gary, Ind. During the marines' first attack on the Japanese fleet on June 4 his scout bomber was hit and set aflame. Henderson was last seen diving his blazing craft into the smokestack of a Japanese carrier.

(Henderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Henderson, live in Lorain, O. His brother, Paul Henderson, is a major in the marine corps.)

After the Coral sea victory of May 4-May 8, the navy said, the high command decided the enemy's next thrust would be directed against some other section of America's Pacific defenses—Hawaii, Alaska, the Panama Canal or the Pacific coast.

Consequently U. S. naval forces were deployed along the 1,700-mile front between Midway island and Aleutians in the north Pacific. Throughout the danger area, bases were reinforced with long-range, land-based aircraft. Thus, the navy made clear, the fighting forces under supreme command of Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific fleet chief, were ready when the blow fell.

This was further borne out in a supplementary account which said that "the full fury of the U. S. naval task force lying in ambush off Midway was poised to strike—once the quarry was overtaken."

Account of Battle

The following account of the battle is taken from the navy communique and supplementary reports based on voluminous communications from commanders in the field:

Enemy Sighted—at 9 a. m. Midway time, June 3, navy patrol planes found an enemy cruiser and transport force in five huge columns, about 700 miles west of Midway, coming in.

Simultaneously a Japanese battle force of carriers and battleships was coming in from the northwest. Army fortress bombers and navy patrol planes damaged a cruiser, a transport and probably sank and damaged other vessels in fast immediate attack.

Battle Joined—Army and marine planes from Midway attacked main battle force early next day. Four army planes attacked two carriers and probably made a torpedo hit on one. Two of the four planes were lost. Six Marine planes attacked and probably got one torpedo hit on an enemy ship. Five of these planes were lost.

Sixteen marine dive bombers got three hits on a carrier, probably the Soryu. Only half of those planes returned. Eleven marine dive bombers reported two hits on a battleship. Sixteen army

OHIO WORKERS GET TRAINING

Marion and Mt. Gilead Listed Among Cities Using Methods To Boost Output.

The war manpower's commission's training within industry program has directly touched more than 400,000 workers in northern Ohio and Erie county, Pa., District Representative Oscar Grothe told The Associated Press today in Cleveland.

Several hundred Marion factory workers are among this total, Louis E. Michel, secretary of the Marion Chamber of Commerce said. A group of Mt. Gilead factory workers is also included.

The announcements of progress in the training program came as the U. S. Employment Service estimated the Ohio-Michigan-Kentucky area would need nearly a half million new war plant workers before the end of the year—151,000 of them in Ohio.

Marion Among Leaders

Marion was a pioneer among small Ohio cities in launching the training within industry program. As far back as April of 1941 Marion industries, through the manufacturers' council of the Chamber of Commerce, heard officials of the training program speak on the setup, which is regarded as a practical method of training workers for more skilled jobs and thus break bottlenecks in wars production.

Last January the Marion group held an instructors institute at which nine instructors were trained in a 20-hour course. These, in turn, set up 12 groups on job instructor training, including eight at the Marion Steam Shovel Co., one each at the Universal Cooler

REVEALS NEW RUBBER METHODS DEVELOPED

Says Synthetic Process May Produce More Tires.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 15—W. S. Farish, president of Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) said today the petroleum industry had developed two new methods of producing synthetic rubber, which may provide by the end of next year 34,000,000 more automobile tires than had been expected.

In another congressional quarter, Senator Thomas (D-Okla) said he would press legislation to create an independent government rubber agency despite opposition from War Production Chairman Donald M. Nelson.

Farish told a house military subcommittee that the new rubber synthesis may provide 200,000 tons of synthetic rubber in addition to the 800,000 tons already planned under the government's rubber program.

Registration Of Homes for War Workers Started

A homes registration bureau was opened today in the Chamber of Commerce office. Office hours will be from 8 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. Monday through Saturday. Citizens are urged to phone into this headquarters information concerning available rooms, apartments or houses for rent, and those desiring such may contact the office.

The bureau was set up to help relieve Marion's housing problem growing out of the city's increased population. Its primary aim is to help find homes for war workers, both those at the ordnance plant and in all industries engaged in defense work.

The project is a cooperative gesture of the local Council of Civilian Defense, the National Housing Administration, and the Works Progress Administration. The Chamber of Commerce has donated the office space and Louis E. Michel, Chamber secretary, has been appointed by the Civilian Defense Council to direct the work to which he will devote a portion of his time. WPA is supplying the clerical assistance.

Workers in charge of the registration will be Mrs. Margaret C. Baker of 1218 East Pleasant street and Mrs. Clara A. Baldwin of 232 Chase street. In a meeting yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce office three representatives of the state WPA organization met with Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Baldwin, Mr. Michel and Cutler A. McGrew, president of the Chamber of Commerce, to complete plans for opening the office. Those here from Columbus were Mrs. Elizabeth D. Tuttle, district director of the service division, L. J. Bibbitt, program director of the clerical service, and Robert Maher, war service supervisor.

Two other offices in the central Ohio district have been organized on a similar plan and are in full operation. They are at Springfield and Columbus.

Two More Concerns Use Payroll Bond Plan

Marion's first financial institution to be certified to fly the U. Marion To Join Nation In Paying Tribute To American Heroes of War

Marion will join the nation Friday in observing American Heroes Day.

The day has been set aside throughout the United States as the time for honoring the country's men and women in service, armed or civilian.

Locally, it will be the day when Marion's retail merchants will stage a one-day drive to sell $10,000 worth of war stamps and bonds to give those in service tangible proof that the people of Marion city and county are backing them with the money to buy the tools of war.

Today's edition of The Star is unique in the newspaper's long history of service in the Marion area.

It is the "American Heroes Day" edition, and carries no local display retail advertising of merchandise.

Instead the retail advertising space is devoted to messages from Marion's merchants to their thousands of patrons, urging participation in the nationwide one-day drive which is the biggest day in the July drive of the "Retailers for Victory" campaign to sell a billion dollars worth of stamps and bonds.

The newspaper is cooperating to the fullest extent with the U. S. treasury department's request by publishing the "American Heroes Day" edition.

Friday every retail store in Marion will push the sale of war stamps and the pledging for bonds among the patrons doing their week-end shopping. Every bank and federal loan in the city and county will make a special effort to sell bonds and stamps.

Every man, woman and child in the city and county has his or her own hero in today's war—a man or woman in service, a man or woman doing vitally important war work.

Friday every man, woman and child who buys or pledges to buy extra war bonds will be given a souvenir card furnished by the Marion war bond and stamp staff, to send to his or her hero.

These cards are lettered:

We Salute You—OUR HERO On "American Heroes Day!"

It's "American Heroes Day" back home here—the day we've set aside to show you that we're backing you all the way. We bought extra War Bonds today to help buy the armaments and tools you need to finish the job. We're going to keep on buying War Bonds until Victory brings you—our hero—back home again!

These cards will be distributed today and Thursday to all retail stores and banks.

To send one of these messages to a boy in camp, a marine in a service hospital, a man in service in this country or overseas, a man or woman devoting his or her labor to vital civilian defense jobs, will be a worthy booster.

Marion's retail merchants, under the chairmanship of Jerry Pitsenbarger, already have pledged to sell $10,000 worth of stamps and bonds this month.

Friday's opening drive for an equal amount of the voluntary goal of $20,000.

Ohio Heroes Were in Vital Roles at Battle of Midway

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 15—Two Ohioans are listed by the navy as among those who played vital roles in the battle of Midway.

Capt. Elliott Buckmaster, 52, of Columbus, O., commanded the aircraft carrier Yorktown, whose planes located and participated in the sinking of the Japanese carrier Hiryu. The Yorktown later was put out of action and her planes operated from other carriers.

William F. Sawhill of (409 W. Fourth street) Mansfield, O., was a crew member with the squadron of 15 torpedo planes, which failed to return from the sea fight but was credited by officers with making the Midway victory possible.

Squadron 8 found the "lost" Japanese force and attacked, although it had no dive bombers or fighter support to divert enemy defensive fire.

"The sky swarmed with Jap Zeros," said the navy's detailed report issued yesterday, "and a seemingly impenetrable screen of cruisers and destroyers protected the carriers." Nevertheless No. 8 deliberately pressed home its at-

RENEW SECOND FRONT PLEAS

Russia Clamors for Allied Action To Divert Push of Axis Troops.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 15 — Soviet Russia was reported by qualified London sources today to be pressing anew for the prompt opening of a second American-British European land front to divert the Nazi armies pounding at the gates of the vital Caucasus.

These sources, who insisted on anonymity, pointed out the eventual peril that Japan might open a second front in Siberia to distract the harried Red army if the Nazis can set the stage for it.

A smashing victory for the Germans in the battle for the Caucasian approaches, they predicted, would be followed by a Japanese attack on Siberian Russia. Japan was said to have massed at least 24 divisions—about 360,000 men—in Manchukuo with air reinforcements from home.

August and September are the best months for campaigning in Siberia, according to these sources. They noted there are no signs of large scale Japanese activity elsewhere on the Pacific front.

Whatever the pros and cons, public sympathy for the reported renewed pleading of Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky was demonstrated in mass meetings over the weekend at Glasgow and Liverpool. Both demanded a new front and all aid for Russia.

Soviet strategists, whose names may not be mentioned, say they are not satisfied that the British air offensive, hampered lately by bad weather, is heavy enough threat to divert German troops.

On the other hand, military sources here foresee a second front as more than just a big hit-and-run affair — one requiring exhaustive preparation. They do not believe they say the situation in southern Russia has reached a point where an American-British invasion of the continent is essential to save Russia's armies from being overrun.

Although the Russians are being driven back, they said, there is no indication that any of the main Soviet armies had been broken or surrounded by the advancing Germans.

RUSSIA CHECKS NAZI DRIVE IN FIERCE BATTLE

Germans Call Troops from West To Replace Heavy Loss in Russia.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, July 17 —(Locked in a great, consuming battle for which Germany is stripping reserve divisions from her garrisons in western Europe, the Russians reported today that they had repulsed enemy attempts to encircle Voronezh, on the north flank of the Germans' Don valley offensive.

Resistance to Hitler's 1942 blitzkrieg, as symbolized by the defense of Voronezh, has so sapped the enemy's reserves that several divisions from Belgium and France have been put into the battle, the Russians said.

The Germans who more than a week ago were claiming Voronezh as theirs actually were stopped by a last ditch defense at the outskirts, Russian front dispatches said today in recounting the struggle for that anchor of the southern Russian army.

Since that clash, presumably some days ago, the Germans attempted to encircle Voronezh, which is 300 miles south of Moscow, but were repulsed on the north and rolled back on the south to the point where they had crossed the Don river to get at the key city.

So long as Voronezh stands it remains a sharp flanking threat to the Germans' deepest penetration of Russia, a thrust which has carried beyond Boguchar, down the Don from the Voronezh sector to within 200 miles of Stalingrad on the Volga.

Axis reports, unconfirmed, said that another drive further south had carried within six miles of Rostov, at the mouth of the Don gateway to the Caucasus.

The Russians said that in forcing the Nazis back at Boronezh they recaptured a small railroad crossing and in another sector applied such strong pressure that the Germans fell back across a small bridge and destroyed it.

The fighting was described as reaching the height of its fury, with German losses so terrific that the third German motorized infantry division, which appeared in the battle line only yesterday, was reported depleted and replaced by the new 188th motorized division after a single day of combat.

Invasion gains in the Voronezh area were declared to have cost Germany more than 35,000 men, killed and wounded, in ten days, and the Soviet information bureau tactfully brought up again the issue of establishment of a second front in western Europe by indicating German forces there are being weakened.

Bring Up Reserves

The Germans are being forced to bring up reserves hurriedly from the rear to take the place of their units which have been put out of action," a communique said. "Several divisions which arrived from France and Belgium only a few days ago have been observed."

Fighting about Voronezh, 300 miles south of Moscow, was reported attended by "varying successes."

The situation remained grave, but a Russian dispatch said the Russians summoned strength for several counterattacks and recaptured one important position west of Voronezh, together with a forest. The battle was said to be at the height of its fury.

Without specifying the exact locality, the information bureau said Soviet soldiers had repulsed an enemy drive and followed this up with a counterattack.

"In another sector, several enemy attacks were beaten off," it reported.

Soviet soldiers defending the big bend country south of Boguchar, after a series of withdrawals, were reported to have destroyed a regiment of Nazi infantry and wiped out more than 700 of its effectives.

Although the Red army counter blows in the Voronezh area were increasing in force, Soviet dispatches pointed out that there was no reason for easy optimism as to the city's fate. They said the Germans heavily were sending fresh troops across the Don to develop the battle spreading out on the east bank.

Nazi Radio Reports All Fronts Advance

By The Associated Press

BERLIN (FROM GERMAN BROADCASTS) July 15—Axis forces are making rapid progress along their whole line of attack on the Russian front, the German high command said today.

Mechanized forces were said to have penetrated the Red army's lines and to cut off Russian communications to the east.

The Russian rear guard has been thrown back, being partly dispersed and partly destroyed, a communique said.

German bombers set intense fires in a raid on Rostov last night, it added.

Strong Russian attacks at Voronezh were acknowledged, but they were declared to have been repulsed in fierce fighting in which 38 Soviet tanks were destroyed.

Marion Selectees in Columbus for Physical Exams

STORAGE PROBLEMS GROW MORE SERIOUS

Kansas Bumper Crop Causes Headaches for Farmers.

(By The Associated Press)

KANSAS CITY, July 15—A western Kansas farmer bowed unhappily at the harvest and beat wheat crop in years—then, in desperation, moved family belongings from his farm room and filled it with the ripe grain.

Down in Vega, Tex., they're using a canal for a wheat storage elevator. In Memphis county, Tex., they've converted up a school house for storage space.

And so it goes throughout the grain belt.

Other farmers are using garages, sheds, barns, vacant store buildings or just letting the grain pile up on the ground.

All public elevators in Nebraska are full, with last year's bumper crop of 184,000,000 bushels still in storage. Kansas elevators have only one or two bins left. Inland Colorado, most farms grain shipments and as harvest of the near-record 1942 crop resumed in place.

Current wheat prices are considered unsatisfactory by many farmers. Some complain that the government is not paying enough for wheat.

Nevertheless, part of the bulge of the new crop are expected to be stored on the ground, with no protection against weather.

"I hope it won't rain," many farmers say. Curtiss added. "We're going to need every bushel of this huge crop before this war is over. I'm glad to see that every effort is being made to get as many acres of it under cover."

Western is the worst of many normally would not be expected to damage to grain piled on the open air, although some waste is unavoidable.

What complicates the 1942 harvest as explained, is the rural carryover supply was 352,000,000 bushels as compared with a normal carryover in past years of 125,000,000 to 150,000,000 bushels.

The Kansas wheat harvest this year is expected to amount to 281,000,000 bushels, compared with a ten year average of 167,000,000 bushels.

Parade Ends Long Draft Hiding for Delaware Co. Man

DELAWARE, O., July 15—A Fourth of July celebration down in Texas made Earl Short of Sunbury change his mind about the war.

This was disclosed in a letter sent to his Delaware county draft board, which had been looking for him for more than a year. Short admitted in the letter he had made false statements in his draft questionnaires, and had been in hiding to escape military service.

Then came the July 4 celebration he saw down in Marathon, Tex. The demonstration was too much for him, so he confessed to his employers, a rancher near Marathon, that he had been attempting to avoid military service.

His letter stated his desire for immediate induction and his request will be granted next month.

They're with Circus Coming Friday

TWO WALLACE BROS. CIRCUS PERFORMERS

Baron Richard Nowak, who stands 23 inches tall, weighs 17 pounds and is said to be 20 years of age, is one of the unusual attractions the Wallace Bros. circus will bring to Marion Friday for matinee and evening performances at the Drake lot on East Fairground street.

Baron Nowak, said to be the world's tiniest living man, is completing his tour of North America this year, ending a three-year round-the-world jaunt.

The circus elephants, always a major interest of patrons, are directed by Capt. Tommy McDonald. The Wallace Bros. show has three herds of performing pachyderms.

Many of the huskers have been trouping with the circus 30 years or longer. They consume four bales of hay a day per elephant as well as an average of 50 gallons of water daily. Their huge toenails must be pedicured regularly and their thick skin must be massaged with heavy oil to prevent cracking.

The elephants will be in the circus proper and also will be on view in the menagerie which will open an hour before show times, scheduled at 2:15 and 8.

Are You Needlessly Suffering Constipation?

Many people think that constipation is one of those things you must put up with. That the only thing you can do is take a purge or cathartic—and hope it doesn't come back again. How foolish that is. If you like millions of others, have the ordinary kind of constipation that's due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, Kellogg's All-Bran is probably just what you need! This crisp, delicious cereal has the "bulk"-forming properties your intestines need to function regularly! It gets at the cause of your trouble and corrects it—helps you get back to normal, easy elimination. Eat All-Bran regularly, drink plenty of water, and help free yourself from constipation. All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, it's wise to see a doctor.

FLAG DEDICATED BY PROSPECT CHURCH

Group Conducts Ceremony in Honor of Service Men.

Special to The Star

PROSPECT—The congregation of the Baptist church dedicated a service flag Sunday at their worship service in honor of members now in service. Six are in air service, three in the ark corps, three in the navy and four in the infantry.

During the ceremony, the mothers or foster-mothers pinned stars on the flag. They were assisted by Miss Dorothy J. Mounts. Lieut. Edgar Roberts, now on leave, acted as the color guard. Rev. O. M. Lasley gave the dedicatory prayer and Mrs. Lasley, at the piano, played a medley of patriotic selections.

Soldiers honored were Capt. Paul Farrington, Lieut. Edgar Roberts, Corp. Dale Thomas, hospital attendant, 2nd class, Robert Harrell, Privates George Betz, Sherman Horsely, Clifford McWherter, Charles Lane, Lester Lane, David Farrington, Frank Huffman, Stanley Beery, David Hughes, Beecher Porter, Robert Solomon and Vernon McPherson.

Charles Hoffman, who leaves this week to enter Eastern Baptist Seminary, Philadelphia, gave the sermon.

Shower Given Saturday for Prospect Woman

PROSPECT — Friends of Miss Maizie Bevis, bride-elect of July 18, complimented her with a "brunch" and kitchen shower Saturday morning at the home of Mrs. Robert Senarist.

The porch was decorated with pink and blue balloons with bouquets of painted daisies and larkspur on the long table. Miss Bevis burst the balloons to find verses directing her to her gifts. Prize winners in bridge were Mrs. B. H. Gast, Mrs. Senarist and Miss Bevis.

Those present were Misses Edna Stockwell, Freda Hull, Hazel Osborn, Mrs. B. H. Gast, Mrs. W. H. Lenner, Mrs. William Emery, Mrs. Irma Westring, Mrs. Edwin Powell of Prospect, Mrs. Edward Meredith of Radnor, Mrs. Merrill Weed of Columbus, Mrs. Roy LeMastera of Richwood and Mrs. Nelson Eshan of Urbana.

Seek More Workers for Federal Service

Attorneys, naval architects and marine engineers are being sought for government employment, it was announced today by F. A. Bryant, local secretary of the U. S. civil service commission.

Examinations for positions in these branches of service will be conducted by the U. S. civil service commission. Information as to the requirements may be obtained from Mr. Bryant at the Marion postoffice.

Learning the Hard Way

WHENEVER Paul V. McNutt chooses to speak as chairman of the national manpower commission, which is often, he adds one more reminder that the United States is learning about the cost of neglecting its labor supply. What Mr. McNutt has to say these days is always the same: There is a shortage of skilled labor, and it is growing worse in ratio to the increase of war production.

The shortage is worse than it needs to be due to shortsightedness in the recent era of unemployment when it actually seemed like a sound idea to prevent workers from learning how to do things so they wouldn't be competing for the too few existing jobs. In cases where apprentices were not discouraged, the same effect often was obtained by lopping off the men over 40 at the other end of the age group.

The result was that in a nation boasting of its productive capacity there was almost no forethought given to what would happen if the total capacity suddenly were to be needed. Not only was there a hidden shortage of machines, but a shortage of the labor needed to operate the machines—the skilled labor of modern times. The labor shortage, warns Mr. McNutt, will become visibly acute before the end of the year when most of the machines turned out by rush order will be needing operators, who can't be turned out on rush order. In the next year, some of the millions of skilled men needed to back up America's boast of being the world's greatest producer will have to be trained to do what they should have known how to do from the time they entered the labor market or were forced out of it.

The Great Unknown

JUDGED by performance, the Red army is the best the Germans have encountered in their campaign of plunder and pillage. Only in Russia have the Germans run into serious difficulty on land.

But in the second year of Hitler's attempt to destroy the Russian army, its actual quality is still a great unknown. The Russian army never has been appraised objectively. Observers have never been permitted to watch it in action.

The impression of its quality is gained entirely by deduction. Red soldiers have withstood the German army more than a year; therefore, they must be good. But how good and why are questions that cannot be answered.

It has been assumed, largely because the assumption was comforting, that Russia could withstand Germany's onslaught of 1942 because it endured the onslaught of 1941. But that may be only wishful thinking. No one outside Russia knows.

The most remarkable revelation of the war has been the complete collapse of what was supposed to be the world's best army, when France fell, and the emergence of quality in what many firmly believed was the world's worst army when Russia failed to fall. In neither case has there been adequate explanation. Why France could be over-run with a minimum of resistance and Russia has been able to lock Germany in mortal combat will be the greatest of all post-war disclosures when finally they are made.

Music's Charms

LATEST sour note from the music industry is an announcement by the omnipotent James C. Petrillo that he won't permit any more records, electrical transcriptions or any other form of electrical reproduction of music after July 31. Mr. Petrillo is president of American Federation of Musicians, whose 140,000 members include just about all the professional musicians there are. Purpose of the edict, Mr. Petrillo explains, is to cut off the recorded music supply from juke boxes, radio stations, restaurants etc. so that more musicians will have to be hired.

As was demonstrated in the late tiff between organized composers and the market for their work, it is risky to try to follow the score on a musical mixup. But it also was demonstrated in that now famous incident that the American public, passionately fond of music, has a surprising capacity for adjusting itself to the exigencies of collective bargaining in the industry. Deprived of the works of many of its favorite contemporary composers, the public listened to something else.

It remains to be seen now whether or not, deprived of the latest recordings, the public will sur restlessly and mutter darkly about somebody doing something before it loses its temper. If Mr. Petrillo knew that in advance he'd probably be a much happier man on the verge of his latest and perhaps his greatest project.

News Behind the News

Predictions as to When War Will End Called "Wild Stabs."

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 15—Congressman Andrew Jackson May set the military men a-muttering when he announced the war might be over this year, certainly next.

Mr. May is an exceptionally able legislator and chairman of the house military affairs committee, but he is also known as a teller of tall stories. He has long insisted, for instance, that down in Pike county, Kentucky, he never shoots at a squirrel directly, but at the limb on which it is perched, so he can kill it by concussion.

An off-set to Mr. May's amazing prediction has been offered by Senator Tydings, of Maryland, who thinks the war will not end until 1944.

Everyone likes to hear good news, and such statements as these are given prominence in the press for that reason, although they are not worth the breath it took to utter them.

No one in authority knows when the war will end. No one can have a good guess. And such wild stabs as are being made fluctuate from day to day with news from the front.

One official who knows as much about it as either Mr. May or Mr. Tydings says the war will last five years, if Egypt falls.

All that can be truthfully and safely said is this:

Many air-minded authorities hope for great things from the second front of air bombing which has been opened by the British. It has been announced this is to be greatly intensified with our help soon.

Those who think the war can be won this way naturally expect an early conclusion. They are in the minority. The vast majority of authorities see the end nowhere in sight.

Dependents' Payments

It will snow gold for dependents in the armed services next Nov. 2, the day before election. On that peculiarly timed occasion, around $325,000,000 of held-up allowances will be shoveled out of the clouds here in payments to wives, children, fathers and mothers. No payments will be made until then.

The war department says it never heard of the election which is to occur Nov. 3. It says it chose Nov. 1, two days preceding—keep a straight face please—because bookkeeping and investigation will delay the preparation of checks until precisely that moment from June 1, the date from which the allowances are to be made.

A tremendous amount of administrative labor and bookkeeping is no doubt necessary to get such a vast system going. But the most peculiar and still unexplained phase of the matter is, why payments are not to be made as cases are completed in the coming months, but are to be held up for one great lump sum payment of five months' arrears just before the voters go to the polls to elect a new congress?

The inhuman aspect of the matter is, that the dependents are assumed to be needy, else the payment would not be made. These are not gratuities, but are for subsistence. How the dependents will live until two days before election, is not quite clear.

Note—The basic monthly allowance for a dependent wife is $50, the government contributes $28 and the soldier $22. In addition, the government furnishes $20 for one child, $10 for each additional child, $5 for parents and other relatives, etc. Maximum possible payment is $112 a month.

Rubber Developments

Any place you touch the rubber situation, it burns with a usual resultant aroma. Only now has the OPA increased the price offered for guayule from 17½ cents per pound to 28 cents per pound, in order to get some of that rubber base product which Mexico has been selling to others.

Our whole Latin American buying policy is still continuing along the same old faulty low-priced line. Argentine, Brazilian and Chilean manufacturers have been tooling our fixed minimum and getting the rubber we need.

Incidentally, a large synthetic rubber interest will announce within a few days a new plan for super-synthetic production which is supposed to provide tires capable of traveling 60 miles an hour.

Scrap Metal

Here Are the Reasons Why It's Important in War.

This article was prepared by National Geographic society.

SCRAP steel and iron today is probably the least understood and the most vitally needed material in America's war effort.

Half of every tank that rolls from United States factories is made from scrap. Half of every ship launched is scrap. Half of scrap, too, is every bomb casing dropped and every shell fired at the enemy.

Confused laymen, knowing that most "reclaimed" or remade" materials are of a much poorer quality than freshly made substances, are asking such questions as these:

Why can't good steel be made directly from iron ore?

Must a civilization become "middle-aged"—and therefore have an accumulation of discarded machines and other things made of steel—before it can have a dependable steel industry?

One reason for the great importance placed on scrap is that it suffers hardly at all from reworking. When it is merely melted and cooled, the product is almost as good an ordinary steel as can be made.

Another reason is economy—economy of time, money, transportation, and man-power. Pig iron costs more per ton than scrap. It takes longer to convert pig iron into steel because of the excess amounts of necessary carbon, and the impurities—sulphur, phosphorus, and other substances—that must be reduced or burned out completely in making new steel. This "reduction" has already been made in the case of scrap.

A third reason is that the United States actually has let its middle age shape its steel industry. Existing blast furnaces which make pig iron from raw iron ore add up to a lesser capacity than the open-hearth furnaces that make steel from a combination of scrap and pig iron. The usual proportion, incidentally, is about half and half.

THE economy of using scrap shows up at every turn. Every time a ton of scrap iron or steel is used, more than four tons of iron ore, coal, limestone, and other natural resources are saved. The 25,000,000 gross tons of scrap supplied yearly by the scrap collection industry means a saving of about 45,000,000 gross tons of iron ore, 30,000,000 gross tons of coal, and over 12,000,000 gross tons of limestone. (This is in addition to the 30,000,000 or more gross tons of "home scrap," picked up within the mills where steel and castings are made and fed directly back to the furnaces.) To mine, transport, and convert the ore, limestone, and coal takes men, ships, railroad cars and time.

It is not impossible to make good steel from pig iron alone, but in the open-hearth furnaces (the type of furnace from which almost all steel in the United States finally is turned out) the process takes more hours than if scrap is added. At least 74 new blast furnaces, each with a daily 1,000-ton capacity, would have to be built if pig iron were to be used alone. Aside from the time and materials involved, the cost of construction would reach well over a half-billion dollars.

ALTHOUGH steel can be made from scrap alone, obviously the available supply is not sufficient, if used without pig iron, to meet the war demands. In the making of certain high grade steels, 100 per cent scrap is charged into electric furnaces. But such equipment is limited and its product is only a small percentage of America's total steel.

The difference between iron and steel seems somewhat vague unless you happen to be a metallurgist. Pig iron has a considerable amount of carbon combined with the iron—from 2 to 3½ per cent. The result of this mixture is a relatively weak, brittle, easily-broken metal. Melt the pig iron and burn out the carbon until it is reduced to somewhat less than 2 per cent, and you have steel. Burn out practically all the carbon, and the result is "iron" again—almost pure iron this time, a relatively soft, bendable metal. Just the right amount of carbon, makes iron into steel, gives it great strength and the ability to be "tempered."

The scrap iron and steel so urgently needed today comes from anything as small as a needle which has lost its point, to an ocean-going liner no longer able to float. Some of its originates in the very mills and foundries where steel and castings are made. It pours into the steel furnaces as shavings, shearings and oddly shaped waste products resulting from the manufacturing of automobiles, tanks and machines. It comes from the backyards, riverbeds, railroads, junk piles and automobile "graveyards."

ALL emphasis now is on the shortage of vitally needed scrap. The actual shortage exists, but equally important is the shortage of facilities for collection and transportation, and of trained men to grade and break down the scrap into 75 or more classifications. In a modern automobile alone there are some 125 grades of iron and steel. This brings up another complication in the scrap industry and the making of steel. Scrap from special steels—containing vanadium, antimony, chromium, etc.—can not be used as an ingredient for ordinary steel.

"Cheap" Aluminum Near

Scientists Find Way To Take Metal from Kansas Clay.

LAWRENCE, Kas., July 15. — (Wide World)—University of Kansas scientists believe they have found a cheap new way of producing aluminum, cinderella metal of the war.

If large scale production develops as successful as laboratory tests on the campus, Dr. R. C. Moore, director of the Kansas geological survey, predicts the door will be opened to many new processors who have been unable to compete with the established method of getting the precious metal from bauxite.

The new process uses clay from Kansas deposits containing quantities so large they never have been measured but which Dr. Moore estimates at tens of millions of tons.

In that respect, the raw material contrasts sharply with bauxite. The amount of high grade bauxite ore in the United States has been estimated as sufficient for only a few years of production, and about 50 per cent of the nation's needs are imported.

It's scarcity is the reason scientists have been developing feasible methods for extracting aluminum from the many clays which contain it in smaller quantities.

Dr. Moore credits the research of E. D. Kinney for developing the new process of getting aluminum from clay. He is a mining and metallurgical engineer at the University of Kansas and metallurgist for the Kansas geological survey. Collaborating with him were Norman Plummer and John Romary, ceramists of the survey, and Ray Thomason, chemist.

They worked out a method which Dr. Moore describes as relatively low in cost and simple in operation.

Details can not be disclosed in a nation at war, but the materials they mixed with the aboundant Kansas clay also are plentiful and cheap. The mixture is heated until a cinder is former containing a soluble aluminate and this soluble chemical is removed merely by application of hot water.

Laboratory tests have shown 70 per cent of the alumina in the clay can be recovered in this way. Still more may be obtained by further leaching with a caustic alkali, but this added step makes the process more expensive.

Alumina is a combination of aluminum and oxygen. Once it is obtained, the method of getting aluminum in its metallic form is the same as used in extracting aluminum from bauxite—by an electrolytic process.

Although exact figures can not be determined without large scale production, the Kansas scientists say their tests indicate costs under the Kinney process compare favorably with the costs of present production methods using bauxite.

Adding to the promise of the new development is the discovery by Plummer of a simple way to concentrate the alumina-rich part of Kansas clays.

Dr. Moore estimates a plant to produce 20 tons of alumina a day could be built for $150,000 and a pilot plant to get the process adapted to large scale production would cost only $10,000.

Twist of the Wrist

That's All It Would Take If Government Would Authorize Lottery for Army-Navy Needs.

By DAMON RUNYON

THE USO needs $32,000,000, and army and navy relief can undoubtedly use as much more. A national lottery would raise enough money to cover the requirements of both many times over without any more "drives" against the already well burdened business men and the general public.

Therefore, it seems to me that the government might well be giving serious consideration to a federal lottery to operate for the duration of the war and perhaps a year afterward. It would do away with much of the confusion of the various "drives" which are now necessary because the government makes no definite provision for the causes in which they labor, but which can never raise all the money required.

President Roosevelt is quoted as saying that this will be a lengthy war and he is probably right. Thus the "drives" must continue unremittingly and probably with steadily increasing demands upon the private purse of the public, unless congress authorizes the money from the general till, which is not likely.

A federal lottery, which I believe would net $250,000,000 per year to the government on the basis of a drawing once a month, would eliminate the necessity for these "drives" which at time must sorely tax the reserve funds of the people, coming on top of other demands that must be met.

A LOTTERY would make ample provision for the families of the men in the service who may require relief. The number will be very great as the army and navy grows, besides taking care of the USO and giving it sufficient funds to vastly amplify its meritorious work.

The collection of small coin in theaters, the calls upon the time and resources of civilians for benefits of various kinds, and all the hullaballoo now attendant upon raising the money would be done away with and would release to other important war work many individuals qualified for active service. Their efforts in the "drives" naturally preclude duty elsewhere.

I am not under-valuing their efforts. They are doing a great and noble work, yet it seems to me that in view of the fact that all the money needed, and more, could be raised through a lottery in a very short time, the number of persons engaged in the "drives" and the energy expended is out of proportion to the financial results. I mean as compared to the possibilities of a lottery.

I am told that while many gentlemen in high places in Washington would like to see a lottery, others equally high do not approve. I am told that President Roosevelt himself is not enthusiastic about a lottery, though I do not believe there is any record of a definite expression from him on that point. However, it is also said he does not favor a general sales tax which now seems inevitable, so he could change his opinion about a lottery, too.

I REPEAT what I have said before that I would not want to see a permanent lottery in this country. It would be unnecessary in normal times and probably a nuisance. But unless the government makes appropriations for the relief of distressed families of service men, or the public support reaches a point where the situation can be fully covered without other assistance, I think a lottery would be a boon to those concerned.

The lottery could be put in operation by the government with less expense than was involved in any of the setups for war work. It could be turned over to the Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and operated through his department and perhaps the postoffice department. It would not require more than a few weeks to get ready for the first drawing and from that moment the cash would be pouring in.

I suppose I ought to quit knocking myself out at intervals about this matter, but it frets me to read about the comparatively small money that is being chipped in for the most worthy causes of the war, involving the well-being of the service men and their families, when a mere twist of the official wrist would completely solve the problem.

Loans Aid Spanish Hotels

By The Associated Press

MADRID—The National Hotel Syndicate reports there are 46,846 hotels, inns, boarding houses, restaurants, cafes and bars throughout Spain, representing an investment of 6,000,000,000 pesetas and employing 230,000 persons.

The hotel industry gives the treasury 350 million pesetas in taxes, so the government has recently granted hotel owners and innkeepers loans amounting to 25,000,000 pesetas at 4 per cent interest for the construction of new hotels and restaurants and the improvement of old ones.

Spanish hotels were often criticized by travelers in the last century and even in the beginning of the twentieth, but they have been considerably improved since the end of the Spanish civil war.

The government has decided to support the hotel industry with loans at a lower interest rate than those granted by private banks. These loans are designed for the support of small proprietors, in accordance with the national policy of aiding them in preference to the wealthier owners. The loans are payable within thirty-five years.

The baby carriage industry is about to be converted from metals to wood; 11,000 tons of steel will be saved by substituting wood for the most part, in the construction of coaches, strollers and walkers.

The two or three dozen industrial plants working for one procurement division of the army will use up more than 100,000 freight cars a day when working at full production. These cars, needed to haul raw materials to the plants and carry munitions and waste products away, represent about four times as many cars as are usually on the tracks of so large a freight center as New York.

In and Around Marion

Out of Balance

Marion soldiers and sailors complain some furloughs tell us they are missing regular payments for the purchase of war savings bonds and we hear reports that thousands of other men in uniform are doing the same. Most of these buck privates as well as certain non-commissioned and commissioned officers. Some men, we are told, started making allotments from their pay when they were on the $21 a month basis.

At the same time we hear of persons here at home, many well paid and in numerous instances having their incomes swelled by the war emergency, who don't invest even a thin dime in the war savings securities.

All of which seems to stack up as an amazing comparison of two grades of Americanism.

Our "Red" Baldinger

Marion's earliest recollections of Lt. Col. Ora M. Baldinger, commanding officer of the new army air school at Lockbourne air base, Columbus, picture him as a boy who was certain to get some place in life—and certainly he has done just that.

He is one of the numerous newspaper boys in Marion's history who have risen to places of importance. As a newspaper vendor, Col. Baldinger has had few equals and probably no superiors in all of Marion's list. Everybody knew him then as "Red" Baldinger and when we say "everybody," we mean virtually every man, woman and child in the city a little more than 40 years ago. Possessor of a lusty voice of tremendous volume, his calls for newspaper buyers could be heard for several blocks as he made his rounds of the city and his daily sales ran into high totals. And no other boy was ever more popular throughout the city, for "Red" always carried good cheer with him and had a broad smile and happy salutation for every person he met, old or young, rich or poor.

The sobriquet "Red," as you might surmise, came from the hue of his hair. In reading reports about him from his new station at Columbus, we learn that there is enough of the original color left in his crest to justify calling him "Red" even to this day, if military etiquette permitted such familiarity.

Even so, should Col. Baldinger visit Marion one of these days and we hope to see him here soon and often, there would be more than a few of his old friends addressing him as "Red." What's more, the colonel would like it.

Warning from Brother

The army air corps may think they have a mechanic but his brother doesn't agree.

The mechanic, a newly-enlisted man from Marion stationed at Patterson Field, Dayton, informed his family that he was tearing down and rebuilding airplane engines. His kid brother asked the usual "why" was he tearing the engine apart and putting it together again.

"To see what makes it tick," his sister explained patiently.

"Aw, heck," he snorted, "he can't do it! Member last winter when he took the alarm clock apart? He couldn't even get the alarm clock together, what's he doin' with an airplane engine!"

Mistaken Identity

Mrs. Mary J. Taylor, Marion's City hospital superintendent, went fishing the other day—it's one of her hobbies—garbed in an old straw hat, a brown dress, a blue sweater, and a pair of old black shoes. It was a rainy day and besides her folding fishing rod she was carrying an umbrella.

She didn't travel far from Marion and she had a good day's fishing despite the rain. But when she went into town at night to get a bus for Marion she learned that the next one left at 2:30 a. m., a matter of a six-hour wait.

It was closing time at the bus station and the clerk put out the lights, without so much as a glance at the dowdy woman carrying an umbrella and a package—the package held the fishing rod and the day's catch.

Chills Reception

Mrs. Taylor, adrift on the street, went to the hotel and told the clerk she'd like to have a room until 2:30. The clerk barely spoke to her. Out on the street again she went to a drug store to put in a call for the Marion taxi firm that she deals with considerably on trips between the hospital and her home on Sargent street.

In the drugstore she met a woman from a family that had been treated at the Marion hospital. Despite the strange get-up, Mrs. Taylor was recognized. The woman said there was only one place in town to put in a long distance call and that was the hotel. Mrs. Taylor declared she wouldn't go near the hotel again if she had to stand on the curb until 2:30 in the morning. The woman said she would go with her. Mrs. Taylor again approached the unfriendly clerk and was told gruffly that she could use the phone.

She put in a call to the taxi firm and then she and her friend went off to the drugstore for ice cream and a friendly chat.

Just a "Panhandler"

When Mrs. Taylor went back to the hotel the taxi was waiting. The driver had gone into the hotel and asked if there was a lady waiting there for a taxi. The clerk said there hadn't been any lady around but there was a woman in several times who looked like a panhandler.

When the driver saw Mrs. Taylor in her fishing outfit he began to laugh and he told her what the clerk had said about her.

The clerk still doesn't know that he refused shelter to one of Marion's leading professional women.

Mrs. Taylor tells the story with gusto but she gets a little sober thinking of the plight of people who might be in the same position in a strange town.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, July 16

A MODERATELY active and successful day is forecast from the prevailing planetary interventions. While there may be advancement, preferment and favors from superiors, employers and those in authority, yet there may be a slight hurt or opposition from an elder. Public, community or fraternal support may be confidently sought, and the social angle is well stimulated for pleasant contacts. This may be particularly effective in domestic, artistic and sentimental relations and functions.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate an active, prosperous and happy year in all their relations and contacts. Superiors and those in power should be gracious and ready to confer benefits or promotion. Public, group and community affiliations are particularly responsive and encouraged, with writings gaining favorable acknowledgement. However the accent is on the social, domestic or romantic associations of life, with probably much merry-making, parties and celebrations of engagements or marriages. All literary and artistic pursuits should flourish and give gratification.

A child born on this day should have strong social and domestic inclinations, being friendly, sympathetic and hospitable. It may have excellent artistic and intellectual abilities, assuring it a happy and successful career.

FARM FUND BILL IN NEW SHOWDOWN

Compromise Plan Faces Test; Possible Veto Seen.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 15—A new compromise in the agriculture department appropriation bill deadlock faced a showdown in the house today amid predictions the President would veto the proposal if it passed.

Offered by Chairman Cannon (D-Mo) of the house appropriations committee, the compromise calls for the sale of 125,000,000 bushels of government controlled surplus wheat at corn parity prices for livestock feeding. This is a sharp departure from the senate demand for 85 per cent of corn parity and previous house insistence that no surplus wheat be sold at prices below wheat parity.

The compromise was approved 31 to 34 on a division vote in the house yesterday, but opponents forced adjournment and postponed a roll-call vote until today on the ground of no quorum.

Despite predictions by some house conferees that the proposal would be accepted by the senate, Senate Majority Leader McNary asserted it would meet stiff opposition. Some said they thought the President would veto it.

THREE TRAFFIC ARRESTS MADE BY POLICE, PATROL

Cardington and Portsmouth Drivers Forfeit Bonds.

City police and state highway patrolmen made three traffic arrests last night and early today.

Roy J. McMillen, 18, of 513 Oak street, was arrested on George street for driving with improper plates. His car was held for appearance in municipal court July 20.

Cardington and Portsmouth men forfeited bonds totaling $25 when they failed to appear in municipal court this morning on charges filed by the state highway patrol.

Carl Akerman, 20, of near Cardington posted $10 for his appearance on a charge of failing to obey a stop sign. He was arrested at 11 last night at the junction of Routes 23 and 4 north of Marion.

Carl Arn, 23, of Portsmouth, arrested on Route 4 south of Marion at 8 last night and charged with reckless operation of a car, posted a $15 bond.

Lorain Hero's Mother Recalls His Philosophy

By The Associated Press

LORAIN, O., July 15 — The mother of a marine corps aviator who dived his plane into the smokestack of a Japanese aircraft carrier at Midway said today, "if and when he had to go, he wanted to go aboard his plane, with his boots on."

She is Mrs. Fred Henderson, wife of a retired steelworker now helping to build ships.

Their son, Maj. Lofton R. Henderson, 39, and his group of scout bombers launched the first attack on the main body of the Japanese fleet at Midway, the navy reported. His plane was the first hit and burst into flames, but he dived it into the objective.

Mrs. Henderson said she was proud he had "distinguished himself in the service of America," but declared there were "countless other sons" equally brilliant.

Maj. Henderson was born in Cleveland and grew up in Lorain. He was graduated from Lorain High school in 1922 and from the naval academy at Annapolis four years later, entering the marine air corps.

He had been in command of the marine corps air detachment on Midway island since May.

REPORT COURT HEARS NAZI CONFESSIONS

Equipment of Spies Displayed Before Commission.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 15—The military commission trying eight accused Nazi saboteurs implied today that it was hearing the confessions reported by the FBI to have been made by the prisoners.

The noon communique issued by the panel of seven generals, said:

"This morning's session was devoted to the reading of certain statements introduced by the prosecution and to the cross-examination by the defense of witnesses who had identified the statements.

"The prosecution is expected to continue the presentation of the government's case for the next few days."

The wording of the reference to the evidence being heard was interpreted by persons familiar with FBI procedure as indicating strongly that the statements referred to were those from the prisoners.

Authoritative sources disclosed in advance of the trial that statements had been made to the FBI by all of the prisoners and most if not all of 14 accused confederates.

Equipment alleged to have been brought to this country by the prisoners was on display in the courtroom.

Maj. Gen. Frank McCoy, president of the military commission, said in his evening statement yesterday that the proceeding was "expected to continue for several days."

LIFE SAVING CLASSES TO OPEN AT POOL

Red Cross To Sponsor Instruction at Crystal Lake.

Swimming and life saving classes sponsored by the Marion County Chapter of the American Red Cross will start next week at Crystal Lake and continue for two weeks it was announced today. The classes will open Monday, July 20 and close July 31. The program has been arranged by Dr. Frederick W. Rea, chairman of the life saving committee, and Miss Elsie Jane Knapp, qualified Red Cross instructor, will direct the activities.

Classes scheduled for Monday through Friday will open at 9:30 a. m. for children eight years old and up. The two-hour instruction period will close at 11:30 a. m. and will include swimming only. Instruction in life saving for both juniors and seniors will be held in the afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock and classes in both swimming and life saving for adults will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p. m.

Assisting with the swimming classes in the morning will be Jack Robbins, Walter Bartlett, Mary Callahan, Raymond Taylor, Betty Bacon, Gene Frederick, George Sakel, Jeannette Curl, Jerry Timson, Dan Kelly and Warren Callahan.

Afternoon instructors in life saving will be Betty Bacon, Jeannette Curl, Jerry Timson, Dan Kelly and Warren Callahan. The evening classes will be instructed by Harold Fralich, John Sekinger, Jeannette Curl, Betty Bacon, Jerry Timson, Robert Beatty, Dick Smith, Gene Fredericks, Mary Callahan, James Emptage, Clair Oberdier, Betty Wolfel, Iris Erow and Roger Pocock.

A reduction in the admission to the lake has been made for those taking the two weeks course and there is no charge for the instructions, the sponsors announce. Instructors for the two weeks' period give their services free.

Child Hurt in One Of 2 Accidents in City

A car driven by Arlient Agnew, 27, of 117 East Church street struck 22-month-old Chuckie Leake, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Leake of 375 Olney avenue, in front of his home in one of two accidents reported to city police Tuesday. The child suffered only minor bruises, police said.

Cars driven by George L. Jackson, 18, of Mt. Gilead and Orval L. Herr, 25, of near Marion figured in a minor collision at the intersection of South State and East Church streets early Tuesday afternoon.

Laval's Position Since Last Move Viewed by Writer

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

Pierre Laval, pro-Hitler chief of the Vichy French government, appears to have maneuvered himself into an uncomfortable position by his uncompromising attitude toward President Roosevelt in the matter of the nine French warships at Alexandria, Egypt.

The President made two proposals to Laval for the removal of the warships from this threatened naval base to a safe haven. The French sailors were to be repatriated immediately and the ships were to be returned to France after the war. It was a friendly offer quite as beneficial to France as to the rest of the Allies.

But Laval rejected the suggestions and countered with the absurd request that the ships be delivered to a French port in the Mediterranean. This of course would keep these valuable fighting machines within possible Nazi grasp. That Laval was acting under German influence is patent. It may easily be that he had orders direct from Hitler.

With the second rejection, Mr. Roosevelt informed Laval that in his view the British would be warranted in destroying the French ships to keep them from falling into Axis hands. The British probably will do just that unless they adopt the alternative of removing the ships through the Suez Canal to a safe place. Thus Laval in one nasty gesture has widened the breach between his government and the Allies, who have persisted in trying to help France despite his attitude, and he has created the possibility of losing his ships to boot.

Edward D. Utz Of Bucyrus Stricken

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, July 15 — Edward Daniel Utz, 71, died at 12:45 a. m. today in the Strohn nursing home. Death followed an illness of six years.

He was born Sept. 9, 1870, in New Washington, and on Dec. 25, 1896 was married to Miss Bessie Garver, who died in 1933.

Surviving are five daughters, Mrs. Lucie Wurm of Cleveland, Mrs. Florence Goldbach of Madison, Wis., and Mrs. Helen Howard, Mrs. Joy Mose and Mrs. Maxine Gerth of Bucyrus; two sisters, Mrs. Frank Jones of New Washington and Mrs. Ida Blake of Detroit, Mich.; and three brothers, George Utz and Alvin Utz of New Washington and Fred Utz of Mansfield.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Wise funeral home at Bucyrus. Burial will be in New Washington cemetery.

Ohio Court Refuses Communists' Appeal

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, July 15 — The Ohio supreme court refused today to disturb a ruling by Secretary of State John E. Sweeney denying the Communist party a place on the state election ballot.

The court said the party did not file with Sweeney a notice of its intention to appeal to the supreme court, and that by the oversight of this "prerequisite" its appeal would not be considered.

Metal Products Company To Start Wooster Plant

WOOSTER, O., July 15 — The Seiberling Metal Products Co. has leased a plant here and is gathering equipment to make metal castings for munitions, it was announced today by the Wooster board of trade.

In a government-approved announcement, it was stated production was expected to begin within a few months, and that women would be hired for many production jobs.

SMALL SCALE ATTACK LAUNCHED BY AXIS

British Report Third Successive Assault in Egypt.

By The Associated Press

CAIRO, July 15—An Axis attack on Tel El Eisa with tanks and infantry, the third successive enemy assault on the British-held height in Egypt's corridor battle zone, was launched at dusk yesterday and lasted into the night, British headquarters announced today.

(A British military commentator said in London that the British withstood the attack which he described as on a "small scale." There was no indication that either the Axis or the British were ready to undertake a large offensive at present, he said.)

Again the RAF played a major part in the fighting, destroying some Axis tanks and sending its medium bombers back "in force" against Tobruk last night, the bulletin said.

While the heavy clash of ground forces occurred in the north, on the coastal end of the line, patrols and columns fought minor actions further inland in the central and southern sectors of the front between the Mediterranean and the Qattara depression some 70 miles west of Alexandria.

The communique did not indicate the outcome of any of these engagements but said the RAF still was dealing the Axis heavy blows to their hard-to-replace mechanized and armored equipment.

WORKERS

Corp. and Fairfield Engineering Co. and two at the Huber Mfg. Co. Since then the Baker Wood Preserving Co. joined the list. Hundreds of men have been reached through these groups.

Marion's interest in the program has been heightened by the fact that R. G. James, former personnel manager for the Universal Cooler Corp., is assistant district representative for the training program with offices in Cleveland.

Made Rapid Progress

In reviewing the progress of the program throughout northern Ohio, Cleveland officials said the northern Ohio training within industry program made an experimental start in January, 1941, and built up so rapidly this year that by June 30 the plan was going on in 388 plants with 10,097 foremen and "lead men" completing the training.

This is the third-largest number of men trained in any region in the country, said Grothe, and the estimated 431,450 workers in the area would benefit directly as a result of their supervisors' training.

Such instruction, he added, has brought a number of "production miracles" including:

One northern Ohio foreman who received the training analyzed one of his jobs to see whether it could be better taught—and found a bottleneck which he corrected with the result his plant is producing 1,400 more "Jeep" parts a day.

Another company was enabled to turn out forging machine operators in 30 days instead of six months.

A truck company was shown how to train its drivers in four days instead of several weeks.

Special attention is devoted in each factory to a number of points, including upgrading of all classes of workers through planned job progression, and developing production specialists, all-around skilled mechanics and supervisors.

Mr. Smith was installation superintendent for the Albert Peck Co. hotel supplies, Chicago. The widow is Mrs. Ebba Schmitz of Chicago. The body will be sent to Chicago from the Smith home for funerals on East Center street.

CARIBBEAN MERCHANTMEN NOW IN CONVOY SYSTEM

Escorts Soon to Give Aid to Gulf Shipping.

By The Associated Press

United Nations merchantmen plying the Caribbean now are operating under the convoy system already in effect along the U. S. east coast, and submarine-challenging naval escorts soon will aid shipping in the Gulf of Mexico.

This extension of the convoy system to hitherto unprotected waters was disclosed yesterday by Navy Secretary Knox as two more reported sinkings put at 371 the unofficial Associated Press tabulation of war-time Western Atlantic ship losses.

"We are getting various patrol vessels to combat submarines into service as rapidly as possible and are increasing the number of patrol planes with equal expedition," Knox told newsmen in New York during an inspection tour of the eastern seaboard.

Little Steel Delegates Meet To Hear Murray

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, July 15 — The "Little Steel" policy committee of the CIO United Steel Workers of America met today to hear their president, Philip Murray, report on the progress of their demands for a $1 a day wage increase and to discuss action in event the war labor board finding fails to meet the requests.

Approximately 125 representatives of local unions from far-flung mills of the Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Inland Steel companies were called to the meeting.

Man Near Prospect Faces Morals Charge

A 45-year-old farmer of near Prospect is being held in the county jail under $3,000 bond on a morals charge in connection with an alleged assault on his 13-year-old daughter. When arraigned before Judge W. Dexter Hazen today he pleaded not guilty to the charge, which was brought against him by his wife. A preliminary hearing has been set for Friday.

Motion pictures furnished by the office of emergency management in Washington were shown at the weekly Rotary club luncheon yesterday at Hotel Harding. The first of three 10-minute films dealt with the manufacture and testing of a new bomber, the second was a review of the defense program and the third dealt with the production of the M-3 medium tanks.

The pictures were shown by William O. Williams, Harding High school football coach.

Guests were Joseph W. Fichter, state grange lecturer of Hamilton, O., Rotarian, Dr. James C. Snyder, Cardington Rotarian, and Loren W. Smoyer and C. W. Grady of Columbus.

Oklahoma Senator Wins Renomination

By The Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 15 — Josh Lee, 50-year-old senator and New Deal champion, won Democratic renomination over nine opponents by a clear majority in unofficial returns from yesterday's primary election.

The Democratic nomination for governor was undecided, but Robert S. Kerr, national committeeman, held a slight lead over Gomer Smith, former national vice president of the Townsend old age pension movement. The Republicans nominated W. J. Otjen, former state senator.

Mansfield and Marion Cars in Accident Here

Cars driven by Warren Gruber, 22, of near Caledonia and Mrs. Lillian Weaver, 21, of Mansfield, figured in a collision shortly before noon today at the intersection of East Center street and Kensington place, the state highway patrol reported.

According to the patrol report Mrs. Weaver drove out of Kensington place and into the Gruber car, which he was traveling west and passing another car. There was slight damage to the left front fenders of each car.

BELIEVE JAPS READY FOR SIBERIAN BLOW

London Says Axis Victory Would Precipitate Attack.

By The Associated Press

Apparently by coincidence, London sources voiced opinion today that the Japanese main fleet is concentrating in home waters and that a smashing German victory in Russia would precipitate a Japanese attack on Soviet Siberia.

Simultaneously the Tokyo radio broadcast a report that Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo, speaking at Osaka, disclosed that the Soviet government had assured Japan that Moscow's mutual assistance pact with Britain and her agreement with the United States contain no provisions regarding Japan.

The Japanese foreign minister told his hearers that relations between Japan and the Soviet union continue to be covered by their 1941 neutrality treaty.

Qualified sources in London, however, predicted that Japan might be the first to open a new front in the world conflict against Russia's far eastern armies in an effort to capitalize on Germany's assaults in European Russia.

The Chinese have long insisted that this was on the agenda, citing concentrations of Japanese forces in Manchukuo, as opposed to a relative quiescence elsewhere.

Official circles in London say the Japanese main fleet probably is concentrating in Japanese waters of the north Pacific. The direct cause for this was said to be the naval losses suffered by the Japanese in the battles of the Coral Sea and Midway.

THE home of Miss Mary Frayer on the Claridon pike was the scene of a picnic and farewell party held last night by Beta Gamma chapter, Lambda Chi Omega sorority, honoring Mrs. Ray Pelfley who will leave soon to make her home in Urbana. Guests included Miss Jean Sherman of Chicago, a former member, and Miss Clara Frayer. Following the picnic supper the time was spent playing croquet and other games. Arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Dale Nickerson, Mrs. Paul Bell and Miss Mary Frayer.

MISS JEAN KNAPP, who is being complimented with a number of showers and other social affairs before her marriage to Aviation Cadet Robert F. McCarty of Chandler, Ariz., was the guest of honor at a family dinner and shower given last evening by her cousin, Mrs. Mary Garey. The dinner was at Hotel Harding where miniature airplanes and red, white and blue flowers carried out a colorful decorative note. Covers were placed for Miss Knapp, Mrs. F. M. Knapp, Mrs. Walter S. Guthrie, Mrs. John Guthrie, Misses Peggy and Elsie Jane Knapp of Marion, Miss Mary Ann Knapp of Columbus and Mrs. George B. Knapp of Delaware.

A SURPRISE and farewell party was given last evening for Mrs. Etta Bechtel by the Ladies' Aid society of Forest Lawn Presbyterian church at the home of Mrs. W. B. Burley on South Grand avenue. Mrs. Bechtel will leave soon to make her home in Philadelphia. Songs were sung by the group and a history of her life, supplied by the members of the society, was read by Mrs. Bechtel. Mrs. C. C. Metz entertained with a reading and group singing was directed by Mrs. Roxie Whytsell. Mrs. Bechtel was presented a gift. Mrs. Elmer Van Brimmer of Delaware, sister of Mrs. Bechtel, was a guest. Miss Feral Burley assisted the hostesses.

Women of St. Paul's Episcopal church and friends of the Red Cross met at the parish house yesterday to sew for the local chapter of Red Cross. The meeting was an all-day session with lunch served at noon. Mrs. A. V. Witt and Mrs. O. S. Rapp were hostesses.

Claiborne Pastor Weds in Middleburg Church

Roses fern and tall cathedral tapers decorated the altar of the Middleburg Methodist church for the wedding Friday of Miss Vee Elinor Grubbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Grubbs of Middleburg, and Rev. Leland Wiley, pastor of the Claiborne Methodist charge.

The double ring ceremony was read at 8:30 o'clock by Rev. Dallas McIntosh of Van Wert. Preceding the ceremony a program of instrumental and vocal music was presented by Miss Joy Lockwood of Middleburg and Mrs. Ellen Warner of Claiborne.

Miss Agnes Marine of Middleburg, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor and Rev. Gerald Clapsaddle of Andrews, Ind., served as best man. Leroy Collins of Springfield and Richard Wells of Claiborne were ushers. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Kenneth Grubbs of Springfield.

For her wedding, Mrs. Wiley wore a white satin dress with a veil of bridal illusion held by a pearl clasp. She carried an arm bouquet of roses and fern.

Immediately following the ceremony the couple left for a short trip. Upon their return they will live with Rev. Wiley's parents in Middleburg until they move into the parsonage at Claiborne.

FARM HORSES SCARCE

By International News Service

LONDON—Good indication of the scarcity of farm horses in Britain today was given in a speech by a cooperative farming official in North Wales. "During a recent horse-auction," he said, "an old nag was offered and so many people needed any kind of horse at all, the bidding went to $800. When $800 had been bid, the auctioneer closed the sale with a triumphant thwack of his hammer and 'It's a bargain. . . .' Then the horse, which had been standing not far from the auctioneer's table, dropped dead. 'Shock' was the explanation given."

DOG OWNERS FINED AFTER SHEEP LOSSES

12 Animals Valued at $104 Slain in Raid.

Owners of two dogs responsible for killing 12 sheep valued at $104 in an early morning raid yesterday in Bowling Green township have paid fines, Elmer Ullom, county dog warden, reported today.

The dog owners are A. F. Sager and William Bayer, both of Bowling Green township, and the owner of the sheep is F. L. Schroll of four miles south of Larue on Route 37.

Fines of $10 and costs each were paid in the court of Justice Frank C. Wilson of Bowling Green township, before whom the men appeared on charges of not keeping their dogs tied from sunset to sunrise.

The dogs were suspected of killing three ewes and two lambs, valued at $31 by Mr. Schroll, on June 24. Mr. Ullom said, and the owners were ordered to keep the dogs tied at night.

As related by the warden, Mr. Sager, who lives on farm adjoining the Schroll farm, heard a commotion in the Schroll sheep field and called Mr. Schroll. Both went out with guns and Mr. Sager shot his dog. The other dog was captured eventually and was impounded by the dog warden.

The fines and costs were placed in the dog and kennel fund, from which Mr. Schroll will be reimbursed for his loss.

FARMER INVENTS SUB

By International News Service

ATLANTA, Ga.—R. M. Williams, a 61-year-old farmer-inventor, is completing plans for a 5-man, 80-foot submarine which he says will be twice as fast as any in existence and a lot safer. Williams made his first plans in 1917, and they were being considered by the government at the end of the World war. He destroyed his plans and models after the armistice.

Dayton Employes Strike for 10 Per Cent Boost

DAYTON, O., July 15 — Employes of the city water, street and sewage disposal systems struck today demanding 10 per cent wage increases. Pickets marched before the city hall and the waterworks.

Officials estimated that about 98 per cent of the departments' 448 employes were out.

A skeleton crew continued to operate the waterworks and no threat of a shortage was seen. The other departments were closed down.

The union recently demanded the wage hike, a 44-hour week with time and a half for overtime, and union security. City officials said the average worker's pay now ranges from $28 to $33 weekly, with a few making $50.

Arrest of Eight Saboteurs Finds Americans in Favor of Universal Identification

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., July 15 — With the arrest of the eight Nazi saboteurs and the FBI drive to round up former Bund leaders and members, a growing majority of Americans believe everyone in the United States should be required to carry an identification card with his photograph and his fingerprints.

New York state is at present considering various plans for citizen identity cards or tags, primarily for identification in case of air raids. In Britain every man, woman and child has been required to carry a "national identity card" since September, 1940, and must be prepared to show the card when challenged by any officer.

National sentiment in the United States on the identity card idea was tested by the Institute last February and again today in surveys asking this question:

"Do you believe every one in the United States should be required to carry an identification card containing, among other things, his picture and his fingerprints?"

The trend of sentiment is shown below:

	Today	Feb.
Yes	72%	69%
No	22	25
Undecided	6	6

One little-realized fact is that the American public has never been as squeamish about universal fingerprinting as many law officers suppose. In fact, as far back as 1937 the Institute found that more than two voters out of every three polled were in favor of starting fingerprint records for everybody in the United States.

Protection Against Spies

The two leading reasons why the public favors identification cards are that they would be useful in case of bombing raids, explosions and other accidents, and as a means of identifying enemy agents, aliens and spies, thereby reducing sabotage and fifth column activities.

However, a goodly number, about one-third, of those favoring the idea do so because they say this is a time of emergency. There is some question as to whether they would favor continuing the plan after the war.

Those opposed to the identity card idea believe it would involve more work and red tape than it would be worth. Others resent it on the grounds of government snooping and violation of personal freedom, or as some put it, "we should not be tagged like dogs."

South American countries have for many years collected civilian fingerprint records. Argentina has prints of her 16,000,000 inhabitants; Brazil registers the prints of all children.

Hardin Co. Youth Group Reorganizes for Year

Special to The Star

KENTON, O., July 15—The Hardin County Methodist Youth Fellowship reorganized for the year when representatives of more than a dozen Methodist church groups met in Sugar Grove Methodist church east of Ada and elected Miss Frances Arthur of Alger, president; Miss Marie VanAtta of near Ada, vice president; Wayne Wentz of Kenton, Grace Butcher of Upper Sandusky, John Streets of Kenton and Lieu Baker of Forest, commission chairmen; Alyce High of Ada, secretary-treasurer and Rev. M. E. Tinsler of Ada, advisor.

NEW TEACHERS HIRED

KENTON, O., July 15 — Miss Alvira Walther of Bowling Green, who will graduate at Bowling Green state university in August, has been employed to teach an elementary grade at Dunkirk, and Miss Edna Stoelthing of Muncie, Ind., who graduatede in June at Ball state college, will teach vocal music and commercial subjects at McGuffey.

A patent has been granted to a Kansas inventor for a process for making meerschaum for tobacco pipes from magnesium silicate and egg whites.

REUNITED, FIGHT FOR SAME CAUSE

After years of separation, Major Joseph C. Stehlin of the U. S. Army Air Force, and his son, Lieut. Charles P. Stehlin of the Free French Air Force, are reunited in New York. Major Stehlin had not heard from his son in two years, since the day he heard him on a radio broadcast from London. Now, although wearing different uniforms, both are fighting for the same cause.

Navy Reveals Jap Ship Losses at Midway

The Enemy Turns — By mid-... enemy had suffered ... 16 ships damaged, and ... command expected ... attack. But the Japan-... course unobserved ...rces began to retire.

... carriers in ambush ... full steam to attack. But ... the enemy had ... course spotted, was not established immediately. Son... planes hunted so long ... sighted at sea.

However, Waldron and Lieutenant Commander Clarence ... Wade McClusky, Jr., of Buffalo, N. Y. guessed what the enemy had done and led attacks on the Japanese heavy resistance. Waldron's squadron scored several hits ... and shot down some Japanese ... before it was wiped out. ... American carrier planes arrived in force. The navy described the ensuing fight as "such an aerial circus as never before had been witnessed so far at sea."

As a result of the ambush the Japanese carriers Kaga, Akagi and Soryu were severely damaged and set afire. Two battleships were hit, one of them left burning fiercely, and one destroyer was believed sunk.

Ambush Discovered—By this time the enemy had learned of the American naval force which included at least three carriers. Planes from the then undamaged carrier Hiryu attacked the Yorktown and her escort. Four bombers out of 18 made three hits on the American ship. The rest were destroyed. A torpedo plane attack followed and although all 12 to 15 planes in this wave were shot down, they put the Yorktown out of action. Her aircraft then began operating from the other American carriers.

Meanwhile the Yorktown's planes had found the Hiryu, hit her repeatedly and left her blazing from stem to stern. She sank the next day. Moreover, two enemy battleships were pounded heavily by these American planes and a heavy cruiser was severely damaged.

About the same time, a U. S. submarine put three torpedos into the smoking Soryu, which later exploded and finally sank that night. At sunset army bombers scored three hits on the damaged Akagi, one hit on an unidentified large ship, one hit on a cruiser which was left burning, and one or more on a destroyer which was believed sunk.

The Kaga and the Akagi and the Soryu sank during the night.

United States forces had won mastery of the air about Midway.

The Chase—Despite unfavorable flying weather to the northwest, where the remnants of the crippled enemy force were retiring, fortress bombers made contact and hit a damaged cruiser early on June 5. Another army bomber force hit a heavy cruiser. About noon, marine corps aircraft also scored a cruiser hit.

Army heavy bombers scored three direct hits on a heavy cruiser. One of these planes was lost and a second was forced down about 15 miles off the islands. All but one member of the crew were rescued. Meanwhile, carrier planes were seeking the enemy in unfavorable weather. The carriers themselves were steaming in full pursuit.

On June 6 carrier aircraft picked up two groups of enemy vessels, including cruisers and destroyers. The cruisers Mikuma and Mogami suffered two bomb hits each and a destroyer was sunk. The Mikuma was sunk that afternoon and the Mogami went down later. Another enemy cruiser and a destroyer were hits. It was in this action that the destroyer Hammann was sunk, the victim of a submarine torpedo.

After June 6 repeated attempts were made to find the fleeing enemy but without success. It was in one of these searches on June 9 that Major General Clarence L. Tinker of the army air force was forced down at sea and lost while leading a group of long-range army medium bombers.

Battle of Pursuit

From the time the Japanese fleet, which had been approaching in two divisions, turned tail on the morning of June 4 until June 6, it was a battle of pursuit with American aviators constantly harassing the Japs and the American aircraft carrier force steaming many miles to the westward in support of its planes.

It was a story of numerous courageous aerial sorties against the enemy squadrons, assaults from which sometimes only half, and in one instance none of the attacking American planes returned.

Early in the morning of June 3, patrol planes spotted the enemy force 700 miles off Midway.

Nine army bombers took off from Midway at once and scored hits on a cruiser and a transport, leaving both burning and severely damaged. Lesser damage was done to other ships. That night a force of the navy's Catalina flying boats located the enemy force by moonlight and scored two torpedo hits on large enemy ships, one of which was believed to have been sunk.

With daybreak June 4, several groups of army and marine corps planes took off from Midway to seek out the enemy flotilla. Four army torpedo bombers attacked two enemy carriers through a heavy screen of anti-aircraft fire and one torpedo hit was believed to have been made. Two of the planes failed to return.

Six marine corps torpedo planes achieved one hit, one of the planes failing to return, and 16 marine corps dive bombers scored three hits on a carrier believed to have been the Soryu. Eight of the 16 were lost.

Another group of 11 marine corps dive bombers made a later attack and reported two bomb hits on an enemy battleship. It was left smoking and listing.

A group of 16 army "Flying Fortresses" scored three hits on enemy carriers from a high altitude. One carrier was left smoking heavily.

Meanwhile, Midway was attacked by a large group of carrier-based Japanese planes. A "badly outnumbered" force of marine corps fighting planes engaged them. With the help of ground fire, some 40 of the Japanese aircraft were destroyed, but only after serious though "not disabling" damage had been done to Midway's ground installations. The navy noted that "no plane was caught grounded at Midway."

With these developments, the Japanese fleet decided apparently that Midway was too strongly defended to continue the attack, much to the surprise of American officers. Between 8:30 and 9:30 a. m. on June 4, it changed course completely and unnoticed by the American planes, which at that time were returning to Midway.

While the Americans were hunting the fleet, the commander of a squadron of 15 torpedo planes located the enemy to the westward and went to the attack immediately, "without protection or assistance of any kind."

"Although some hits were reported by radio from these planes," the navy said, "and although some enemy fighters were shot down, the total damage inflicted by this squadron in this attack may never be known. None of these 15 planes returned.

"The sole survivor of the 30 officers and men of this squadron was Ensign G. H. Gay, Jr., who scored one torpedo hit on an enemy carrier before he was shot down."

who started out in the torpedo who started out in this torpedo squadron was William F. Sewalk, Mansfield, O.

Once the enemy was located, other carrier-based groups proceeded to the attack. They suffered "heavy losses," but torpedo planes engaged the attention of the enemy fighter planes and anti-aircraft to such a degree that our dive bombers were able to get their bombs after both the carrier and battleship without serious interference.

In this phase of the action, two Japanese aircraft carriers, Kaga, Akagi and Soryu were severely damaged, two battleships were hit, and one was left "burning fiercely," one destroyer was hit and believed to have been sunk.

The carrier Yorktown was put out of action in what amounted to a long-range duel of planes between the U. S. ship and the Japanese carrier Hiryu which at that time, June 4, was still undamaged.

A force of 38 enemy planes found the Yorktown and her escorting ships and attacked. Those planes were from the Hiryu.

"Eleven of 18 Japanese bombers in the group were shot down by our fighters before their bombs were dropped," the communique reported.

Seven Get Through

"Seven got through our fighter protection. Of these seven one was disintegrated by a surface ships anti-aircraft fire; a second dropped its bomb load into the sea and plunged after it; while a third was torn to shreds by machine-gun fire from U. S. fighter planes. Four enemy bombers escaped after scoring three direct hits."

"A flight of 12 to 15 enemy torpedo planes escorted by fighters followed up the bomber assault on the Yorktown. Between four and seven of this group were destroyed by American fighters and three were shot down by anti-aircraft fires before launching their torpedoes, The navy said.

"Five succeeded in launching torpedoes, but all five were destroyed as they attempted to escape. The Yorktown was hit during the assault and put out of action. The damage caused a list which rendered her flight deck useless for landings and takeoffs. Her aircraft, however, continued the battle, operating from other U. S. carriers."

Meanwhile, some of the Yorktown's planes had located the Hiryu which was accompanied by battleships, cruisers and destroyers. The American planes immediately attacked and the Hiryu "was hit repeatedly and left blazing from stem to stern."

"She sank the following morning," the navy said. "Two of the enemy battleships were pounded severely by bombs and the heavy cruiser was damaged severely."

After relating other details of the fighting, the navy said that as a result the situation at sundown on June 4 was that "U. S. forces had gained mastery of air in the region of Midway."

June 5 Action

Of June 5, the communique said:

"At dawn our forces were marshalling their strength for further assaults against the enemy fleets which by now had separated into several groups all in full retreat."

"To the westward a group of army bombers contacted and attacked a contingent of battleships and cruisers, scoring a direct hit on a damaged cruiser. Another group followed with a second quick jab and still later, at noon, marine corps fliers delivered a third. Direct hits were scored in both instances. In the afternoon, army flying fortresses attacked and more direct hits resulted.

Throughout the night of June 5-6 the navy said, the American carrier force was "steaming westward in pursuit of the enemy."

Two groups of enemy ships were discovered early in the morning of June 6. At least one bomb fell on each of the heavy cruisers Mikuma and Mogami. A destroyer was sunk.

During the afternoon the Hammann was sunk by a Japanese submarine, but most of her crew was rescued.

After June 6, repeated efforts were made to locate the dispersed and fleeing enemy ships but all failed. On June 9, while army bombers were still engaged in the search, a plane carrying Maj. Gen. Clarence L. Tinker was forced down at sea and lost.

MARION JOINS THE NATION — IN HONORING AMERICAN HEROES

This is an American soldier.

He goes to war not with any fanatical theories of race superiority, of any special "place in the sun," nor any desire to rule the world by fire and by sword. He fights for something greater. For decency—for his loved ones—for his Country, not as some warlike symbol, but as the one great refuge in this world where the humble, the meek, and the righteous may live and work in peace.

This is why he must win. For these are lasting, truthful things. They are not temporary drugs for the mind, but steadfast things of the heart and the soul. And when the flame of fanaticism finally flickers and goes out, the fires of American decency and honor will still burn.

It is this same sense of decency and honor that has bound us all together. We know we cannot all fight. But there is something we can do—and are doing—to help. We can help provide the guns, the planes, the tanks, and the ships to put might behind the right.

By the tens of millions, Americans are saving for Victory in the War Bond Payroll Savings Plan. Every payday, we employees, workers and bosses are putting aside 10% of our pay—a dime from every dollar—and every time these savings amount to $18.75, we get a War Bond. And—because this is the free American way—our money is working double. First it goes in a mighty flow for the instruments of Victory, then—ten years later—it comes back to us, four dollars for every three we've put into War Bonds—$25 for every $18.75.

Now look at the picture again. Then imagine that this soldier were your brother, your son, or your sweetheart.

Would ten percent of your pay, in War Bond savings, be too much to help him win—and live?

5 Reasons Why

1. By investing in War Bonds you help provide the planes, the tanks, the guns and the ships we must have to survive and conquer.
2. You prove that you are a patriotic American.
3. You aid the morale of our fighting men, by showing them that the entire Nation is behind them.
4. You prove to our enemies that we are a United People.
5. You protect your own financial future, as every $18.75 you invest in a War Bond brings you back $25 in 10 years. You make the world's safest investment, by buying a share in the world's most powerful country.

MRS. MURDOCK TAKES A CASE

by George Harmon Coxe

CHAPTER 24

Joyce Takes Over

JOYCE was reading in bed.

"You must have had a busy night," she said.

"I did," Murdock answered, "in a way." He began to undress, conscious of her inspection and trying to make up his mind about a lot of things. "As a matter of fact I was out at Heston's."

"Oh?" the word came on a softly rising inflection.

"She wanted to talk about Ward Allen."

"I see. And what did she have to say?"

"Plenty. I've got the dope on his South American adventures."

"Oh," Joyce said again. It was a different word entirely this time, and her glance was uncertain.

"I'll tell you about it if you can stay awake," he said.

She did not answer right away, but lay there watching him, her brow creased in thought and biting me to think too much about Heston.

"Kent," she said finally. "Why don't you do something about it?"

"About what?"

"The murder."

"What could I do?"

"You could try—"

"To solve it, you mean?" He shook his head, his grin sardonic. "Oh, no. I don't know anything about the case and I don't want to know."

Joyce watched him, saying nothing. There was the look in the eye of a man with some boyish dare in his stubborn mind, something there wasn't much the could do. He'd made up his mind that this murder was none of his business—whether because of Heston or from sheer inertia—and that was that. Only it wasn't as simple. If he could know what was really happening — if she could tell him the truth—

Her thoughts hung there a moment. Should she tell him? They needed help, she and Delia. And yet, even if she told him it might do no good. Unless she could goad him into saying that he would at least try to find a solution—

"You're not afraid Heston has something to do with it, are you?"

"Certainly not."

"But still you don't want to know anything about the murder. You won't try to solve it even if I ask you."

"Joyce—"

"You won't, will you?"

"No." Murdock said bluntly.

Decision

"Very well." Joyce turned and patted the pillows. "Then I will."

"You will what?"

"See what I can do about finding out who killed Perry Clarke."

"Oh, no, you won't."

"But I will," Joyce said sweetly. "I'm not sure I can help much, but I intend to try."

He came to the foot of the bed and scowled down at her. "You stay out of it. You think murder is some game?"

"Quite the contrary but—"

"Whoever killed Clarke will pay with his life if he's caught. That's all he can lose, his life. If it means killing somebody else to save him he'll kill again. You happen to stumble across something that puts him in a spot and what do you think that makes you?"

"A good detective."

His face darkened. "I'm telling you, Joyce—"

"I hear you."

"I mean it."

"I know you do," Joyce said calmly. "But you won't do anything yourself, will you?"

"No, I won't."

"All right. I just wanted to be sure."

She lay back and pulled up the covers.

Murdock hesitated, helpless in his exasperation because he sensed that he had accomplished nothing. He turned abruptly and started for the bathroom, and just as he passed through the doorway Joyce said:

"And while you're in there, darling, be sure and wash that lipstick off your face."

Beyond Her Depth

Loretta, the maid who came to the Murdock's every morning but Sunday to wash dishes and clean, answered the telephone and found Joyce in the bedroom brushing her hair.

"Telephone," Loretta said. "It's Miss Stewart."

Joyce said: "All right, thank you," and stood up. She was wearing a plaid dress, predominantly brown and simply styled. There was a little collar and a leather belt and buttons all down the front, and the skirt had pleats that gave her plenty of leg room for her easy, graceful stride.

"Oh, Joyce," Delia said, her voice agitated. "The lieutenant wants me to come see him. At police headquarters. And Joyce"—her voice choked—"they've arrested Ward."

A sinking sensation came over Joyce.

"Are you sure?"

"Yes. Uncle Dean's on his way over here now. He's going down with me. But I want you, too, Joyce. Will you come?"

"Of course, darling, if you want me."

"Oh, I do. I need you. We'll come by for you in twenty minutes or so." She hurried on after a breath. "And we've got to hurry, Joyce. We've got to get back here to meet Mr. Fenner at eleven thirty."

Joyce glanced at the clock on the mantel and saw that it was nearly nine thirty. There had been a telephone call for Kent shortly after eight from McGrath, the managing editor of the Courier, and he had gone out in a hurry, muttering something about an assignment in Providence. There'd been an explosion, he'd said, aboard some ship. He might not be back until late.

She had a feeling of things closing in on her, of getting beyond her depth.

Such were her thoughts as she waited for Delia and Dean Thorndike. They were still in her mind when they went up the steps and into the vaulted foyer at police headquarters and spoke to the officer at the information desk.

They waited until a man came to get them; then they rode up in the elevator and were taken to a room adjoining Lieutenant Bacon's office. It was, she saw, a conference room of sorts, with a long table in the center, a flat-topped desk at one end, and eight or ten chairs, everything in golden oak and well scarred.

Lieutenant Bacon was seated at one end of the table, his back to the desk. Next to him was a well-dressed man with horn-rimmed glasses and not much hair, although he had a young-looking face. Bacon introduced him as O'Conner, from the District Attorney's office, and asked them to be seated.

"I hardly expected so many of you," he said, eyes on Delia.

"I asked them," she said.

"And I want to know about Ward Allen," Thorndike added. "Where is he? Has he asked for a lawyer?"

"Why has he been arrested?" Delia said.

Bacon answered calmly. "He's not actually arrested. It might be called protective custody. The thing is we've unearthed a few facts that need explaining. Maybe it's just as well you all came. . . . By the way, Mr. Thorndike, what about those bonds?"

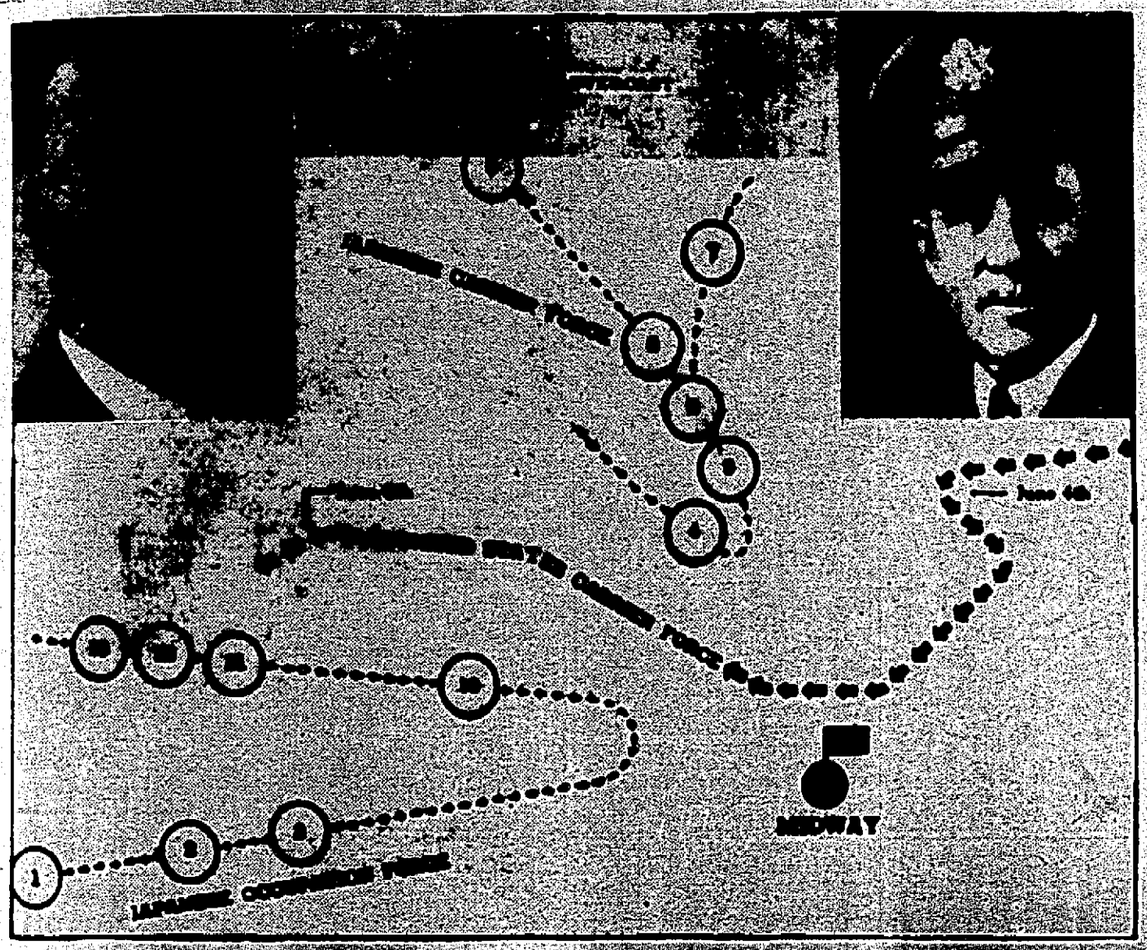
Official Navy Pictures Show Action in Crushing Japanese Defeat at Midway

Here are official U. S. navy photos just released of the battle at Midway June 3-6 in which the American forces delivered a crushing blow to the Japanese attacking force of 80 warships. The navy announcement revealed the Japanese lost 20 ships and that the U. S. losses were aircraft carrier Yorktown, put out of commission, and the destroyer Hammann. Above at left is pictured a direct hit on the Yorktown by a Jap bomber, shown in circle, and at right the Hammann going down. The insets below picture the American commanding officers in the Midway battle. At top left is Admiral Chester L. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, and right is Maj. Gen. C. L. Tinker, commander of the Army air force in Hawaii. Gen. Tinker was killed in action in the Midway battle.



Along with its report of the Midway battle the navy released the illustration of the action pictured above. To understand what occurred in the four day running battle first consider the illustration in the lower left, then in the upper center.

DEMOCRATS SUPPORT HEER FOR GOVERNOR

Columbus Man Backed by Cuyahoga Organization.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 15—The powerful Cuyahoga Democratic organization today backed the candidacy of Walter F. Heer of Columbus in the party's five-way battle for the gubernatorial nomination in the August primary.

Chairman Ray T. Miller announced last night that the county executive committee approved by a vote of 192 to 14 recommendations of a scanning committee which selected the Franklin county Democratic chieftain and other candidates for endorsement.

Heer supported a recent movement to draft Miller as a candidate, then entered the race when the Cuyahoga county chairman declined to run.

Earlier, former Congressman John McSweeney of Wooster asserted in a formal statement at Columbus that he was not the "candidate of any individual or group" in seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

He did not mention ex-Gov. Martin L. Davey's endorsement of former State Treasurer Clarence Knisley of Bainbridge but recalled that he previously had told Democratic chairmen he did not believe it "just or proper" for party leaders to endorse a candidate.

Other candidates for the nomination are State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson and Frank Dye of Columbus.

The Miller organization also voted to support George D. Nye of Waverly for the nomination for lieutenant governor; Robert S. Cox of Millersburg for state treasurer, Joseph Allen of Columbus for attorney general, Michael A. Feighan for the 20th district congressional nomination in opposition to Rep. Martin L. Sweeney, and John Gillespie in the 21st district in opposition to Congressman Robert Crosser.

Cincinnati Drops 2-1 Decision To Phils Despite Starr's 3-Hit Pitching

Two Outfielders Collide Trying To Catch Fly; Cubs Hurler Allows 11 Hits But Scores Shutout.

The secret of successful pitching sometimes seems to be out as much as ever.

Paul Starr, the lean speedballer of the Cincinnati Reds, pitched three-hit ball yesterday and was beaten 2-1 by the Phils when two outfielders collided under a fly ball by Pitcher Frank (Rube) Melton and the ball fell for a home run.

The Boston Braves, losers of their last nine games to the Cincinnati, meet the Reds today in a double-header.

Paul Derringer and Sunny Warneke, both three-time winners from the Braves, are probable pitchers for the Reds against Jim Tobin and Manuel Salvo.

On the other hand, Vern Olsen, the Chicago Cubs' southpaw, was pummeled for 11 hits by the New York Giants and not only escaped with his sixth straight victory but scored a shutout, 2-0.

Starr's misfortune cost him his fifth defeat against a dozen victories and cost Cincinnati a full game's distance against the Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals, both of whom won.

At St. Louis Mort Cooper had luck of a different sort. He was batted out of the box for the third time in succession, but the Cardinals rallied spectacularly to beat the Boston Braves, 7-5, in 11 innings and wipe out what would have been Cooper's fifth setback.

A two-run homer by George Kurowski tied the score in the eighth and another two-run circuit clout by Stan Musial settled the affair.

Brooklyn punished the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1 with Whitlow Wyatt pitching three-hit ball for his tenth triumph of the year in a night game that drew 21,254 fans at Pittsburgh.

In the American league, the New York Yankees downed the Detroit Tigers, 3-0 on the two-hit hurling of rookie Hank Borowy and extended their first place margin to six games as the Boston Red Sox absorbed another beating by the St. Louis Browns, 9-2.

Boudreau To Shoot the Works Against Yankees

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 15—Manager Lou Boudreau left no doubt in the minds of his listeners that he intends to shoot the works against the New York Yankees, hosts to the Cleveland Indians in a three game series opening today.

Although the boy manager declined to get out on a limb, he said nothing short of a pair of victories in the series would satisfy him. To start the ball rolling in the right direction he picked a Yankee puzzler, Chubby Dean, for the initial assignment.

"Dean is my choice to open the series," Boudreau said. "My selection of pitchers for the next two games will depend on the outcome of the opener. I may start Mel Harder and Al Smith, or Red Ruffing and Steve Gromek. Dean was beaten by Yanks twice this year.

TWO-MINUTE FIGHT NETS CHARLES $1,000

Steve Mamakos, the Loser, Gets $1,250.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, July 15 — Ezzard Charles, flashy Cincinnati fighter, collected $1,000 for two minutes and 48 seconds of lethal pummeling last night but his victim, Steve Mamakos of Washington, D. C., got an additional $250.

Mamakos, whose purse was fatter because he went 14 and 15 rounds in bouts with Tony Zale last year, ran into a choppy right as he rushed Charles at the opening bell, going down for the count of nine. Mamakos did not repeat performance just before the round ended and was counted out on his knees. Mamakos weighed 162½, one pound less than Charles.

A crowd of 1,863 paid $2,351 to see the show which Promoter Benny Becker estimated cost about $4,200. Only last month Bill Corbet promoted a card which he said lost about $4,500.

In last night's preliminaries George Coster of Cincinnati won over welterweight Jerry Pittro of Peoria, Ill., and Cleveland Brown of Cincinnati beat lightweight Sam Scully of Chicago.

Eddie Arcaro's Cousin Doing Good At Hamilton

Objects To Basking in Reflected Glory of Famed Kin.

By The Associated Press

HAMILTON, O., July 15—Louis Arcaro, 18-year-old jockey who is doing all right at the current Hamilton meeting, would be a bit better satisfied were his name Smith, Jones or Zyrowski.

He's getting tired, he says, of being referred to as "Eddie Arcaro's cousin."

Louis admits Eddie is "the best jockey in the business," but he objects to basking in the reflected glory of the famous cousin, who rode Lawrin to victory in the 1938 Kentucky Derby and repeated on Whirlaway in 1941. Eddie had a chance to make it three Derby winners this year, but chose to ride Devil Diver instead of Shut Out. Shut Out was a surprise winner, while the Diver finished sixth.

Louis, who hails from Mount Healthy near Cincinnati, and tips the beam at 104 pounds, is the eldest of the 11 kids in his family. He once suggested to his dad that he adopt another name for his riding chores, but declared his father "wouldn't listen."

The Ohio youngster never was astride a horse, except on a merry-go-round, until 1933, when cousin Eddie booted Lawrin home in the blue grass classic.

"That gave me the urge," he declared, and that summer he took an exercise boy job with Lee Cott of Red Bank, N. J. He made his first professional appearance in 1940 at Aqueduct and as an apprentice won 18 of 34 starts.

Frank Kearns, then handling the Calumet stable in which Whirlaway was a mere stripling, sought his services. He's still under contract to Kearns, but by agreement is appearing here as a free lance. In 1941, at Empire City, he was the leading apprentice jockey, winning much good events as the affirmation takes.

Attracted by Louis' skill with the cut-hunters, Hirsch Jacobs, one of the turf's leading trainers, leased him for an engagement at Washington Park, and the youngster breezed in with six winners in nine attempts.

He was back at Empire City in the fall of 1941, and there he got his biggest thrill—for he beat his famous cousin.

"I was up on Darby Dan, bred by John W. Galbreath of Columbus, O.," Louis declared. "Eddie was aboard Bright Grey. I beat him by a nose. No, Eddie didn't have much to say about it, for just before the race he had been notified he was being set down for six months for rough riding."

Early this year Louis found weight-making a tough job.

"I knew nothing about dieting," he said. "I fasted for days at a time, never taking so much as a sip of water. Eventually my stomach went bad and I had to rest.

"Now I know how to reduce without harming myself. I eat what I want when I want it, but abstain from fats, potatoes, ice cream and such things. I never eat fried foods — only boiled ones."

Louis doesn't plan to become a trainer when he gets too old to ride. In fact he'll desert the track altogether.

"Someday," he declared, "I'll start a school for women who want to reduce but don't know how."

BOSTON, July 15—(Wide World) Plain Ben Jones, who ought to know, says Apache's the hoss Whirlaway has to beat today to pick up the Massachusetts marbles . . . Weigel and all, we'll string along with Mr. Big-tail.

Defense Mechanism—The Yanks have chalked up 112 double plays . . . It's just like those National leaguers said — the only way to get a hit through that infield is to shoot it out of an ack-ack gun . . . Tip is out that Tennessee'll be the hottest outfit in the Southeast conference football this fall . . . Chicago will get the first fight of Mike Jacobs new navy-USO series that goes out of New York this fall . . . But you can bet Tony Zale won't be in it. Tony's exclusively interested in being a sailor boy . . .

• • •

Today's Guest Star—Buck Weaver, Louisville Times. Our old friend Frankie Catrone, is so far in front of the trainers at Suffolk Downs he can stumble a couple of times and still finish ahead of the others.

• • •

Rejuvenation—What's this about Joe Cronin working out to whittle his waist down? . . . Back to infield patrol, Joe? . . . Well, if Luke Sewell and Ossie Bluege can do it, why not Mr. Big Jaw of Boston? . . . and any day now you'll probably hear about Jimmy Dykes wheeling himself back into that White Sox lineup . . . If he can still wheel.

STRETCHES LEAD

SPRINGFIELD, O., July 15—Charleston stretched its Mid-Atlantic league lead to four games last night, edging Springfield 2 to 1 as Canton crushed second-place Erie 11-2.

Dayton defeated Zanesville 5 to 2. Duke Pitcher Jack Franklin allowed 11 hits, but struck out 10 men.

Mount Healthy, O., Youth Would Change Name to Smith.

Early this year Louis found weight-making a tough job.

"I knew nothing about dieting," he said. "I fasted for days at a time, never taking so much as a sip of water. Eventually my stomach went bad and I had to rest.

"Now I know how to reduce without harming myself. I eat what I want when I want it, but abstain from fats, potatoes, ice cream and such things. I never eat fried foods — only boiled ones."

Louis doesn't plan to become a trainer when he gets too old to ride. In fact he'll desert the track altogether.

"Someday," he declared, "I'll start a school for women who want to reduce but don't know how."

COLUMBUS, TOLEDO SPLIT DOUBLE BILL

Preacher Roe Hurls Flock To 4-3 Win in Finale.

By The Associated Press

The winning spree of the once lowly Toledo Mud Hens was at an end today, temporarily at least, but they had sixth place to show for their recent string of successes in the American association.

The Mud Hen victory streak reached eight in the first game of a double-header against Columbus last night. It stopped there when Preacher Roe pitched Columbus to victory in the second game, 4 to 3. The Hens took the opener 1 to 0 with Fritz Ostermueller outpitching Frank Gaspar of the Red Birds.

Toledo was able to slip into sixth place, a single point ahead of Louisville, when the Colonels suffered their fifth straight reverse to Indianapolis, 6 to 1.

Columbus maintained its half-game hold on second place when challenging Milwaukee lost to first place Kansas City, 6 to 4, after winning the first game of a double-header, 3 to 2. In the other game, Owen Scheetz turned in a five-hit performance as Minneapolis trimmed St. Paul, 5 to 1.

Stranahan To Defend Title As Ohio Amateur Golf Tourney Starts at Cincinnati Course

Toledoan, Uncertain About Playing, Jumps in for Another Clash with McCarthy; Turns in Par Card.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, July 15—As 64 golfers today began the first of four daily 36-hole rounds of match play to determine Ohio's amateur golf king, it looked as though a certain broad-shouldered Irishman from Toledo, one Frankie Stranahan, intended to keep right on wearing the crown.

The 23-year-old former Arizona state champion, after some indecision, took to Maketewah's soggy fairways yesterday and showed 162 entrants the way over the 18-hole qualifying route with a medal score of par 72.

Perhaps the late entry of Maurice McCarthy of Cincinnati, three-time amateur champion, had something to do with Stranahan's reconsidered decision to play the course, for he was exempted from qualifying.

McCarthy lost to Stranahan in two play-off holes at Toledo in last year's amateur, and today's pairings were so scheduled that if the two meet again this year it will be in the finals.

Playing with Stranahan and Tony Ruddy of Toledo, McCarthy shot a 74 in the qualifier, tying Paul Schmitz, another Cincinnatian. Walter Bialy of Akron and Erv Baumgartner of Cincinnati tied for runner-up medal honors with 73's.

Eight 83-shooters fought it out through four extra holes for the last five qualifying places; and Cliff Sweeney of Middletown, Dave Moes of Lima, Tom Whiteway of Cleveland and Tom Davies and Fred Vonnerahe of Cincinnati won.

Pairings for today's opening 36 holes of match play with qualifying scores and some times of non-local golfers included:

Erv Baumgartner (73) and Tom Cloran of East Liverpool (78); Dutch Reid of Chillicothe (78) and Bob Braun (82).

Emmett McHolland of Columbus (78) and Dave Moes of Lima (83).

Maurice J. McCarthy Jr. (74) and J. L. Turney of Middletown (79); Bob Campbell of Granville (78) and Cliff Sweeney of Middletown (83); Bill McCabe of Middletown (78) and Dick Rayan of Columbus (18).

Quarter Finals Today in Women's Tourney

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 15—Eight survivors of first round play, including the queen, a former two-time champion, the state's medal play ruler and the public links crown-wearer, were set today for quarter-final matches in the twenty-third annual Ohio Women's golf tourney.

Miss Neoma Cooke of Toledo, defending laurels she won a year ago, remained the No. 1 favorite after winning the qualifying medal and then shooting 12 holes in even par yesterday for a 7 to 6 victory over Claire Doran of Cleveland.

Suit in the fight were such stars as Mrs. James Platt of Dayton, the state's medal play champion; Miss Janet Shook of Dayton, winner of the state title in 1938 and 1940, and Mrs. P. J. (Thelma) Linster of Mansfield, Ohio public links champion in 1940 and 1941. Miss Cooke won the "pay as you play" laurels in 1939.

Today's 18-hole matches pitted Miss Cooke against Carol Dirnberger of Tiffin; Peggy Kirk of Findlay against Mrs. Edwin Tasker of Toledo; Mrs. Platt against Miss Shook, and Mrs. Linster against Carol Lee Sherrets of Coshocton.

In the first round Miss Dirnberger won 6 and 4 over Betty Lee Doren of Dayton; Miss Kirk triumphed 3 and 1 over Dell Schildmuller, four-time champion of Cincinnati; Mrs. Tasker eliminated Marjory Wendel of Dayton, 4 and 2; Mrs. Platt took a one-up decision over Mary Ann Herron of Akron; Miss Shook defeated Mrs. Theda Hill of Akron 2 up; Mrs. Linster came from behind to defeat Mrs. Edwin Reese of Cincinnati 4 and 2; and Miss Sherrets won by 4 and 3 over Mrs. Francis Thomas of Columbus.

Mrs. S. B. Kent of Cincinnati, secretary of the Women's Ohio Golf association, said Thursday's semi-finals probably would be held in the afternoon, instead of the morning, to afford the contestants flight entrants a chance to see some of the title play.

The tournament ends Friday when the 36-hole finals are slated.

AUTO DEALERS MEET TO DISCUSS PROBLEMS

Directors Open Three-Day Session in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, July 15—Directors of the National Automobile Dealers association today opened a three-day discussion of wartime problems which can't be kept waiting until next January's convention.

"We don't know the solution to a lot of our problems," asserted Ray Chamberlin of Washington, executive vice president.

The automobile business operated primarily on sales. Service departments never have been a sustaining factor, he said, adding that many dealers who'd hoped to "brave the (rationing) storm" by increasing service had found the demand for repairs halted by reduced driving.

Other developments that have put the potential new car buyer's bills back into his wallet were listed by Chamberlain as a threat of national gas rationing, talk of asking motorists to give up their spare tires and a report that private cars would be requisitioned for the armed forces.

Former Morrow County Miller, Is Found Dead

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, July 15—John M. Dawson, 83, of Chesterville was found dead on the lawn of his home yesterday at 5 p. m. by Mrs. Dawson. Dr. Lowell Murphy, coroner of Morrow county, pronounced the cause of death cerebral hemorrhage.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawson had moved into Chesterville recently from the farm where they had resided for 15 years. Mr. Dawson had followed the trade of miller in Cardington, Mt. Gilead and in Chesterville before locating on the farm.

Surviving, besides the widow, Mary Fluckey Dawson, are a son and a daughter, Verlin Dawson of Mansfield and Mrs. Ray Cardwell of Casper, Wyo.

Mrs. Mary Jividen Of Near Radnor Stricken

Special to The Star

RADNOR, July 15—Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Jividen, 45, wife of Raymond H. Jividen, died yesterday at her home north of Delaware on the Horseshoe road. Surviving are her husband, two daughters, Mrs. Thelma James of Cleveland, and Mrs. Mazie Jividen of Marion county, and four sons, Stanley of Cleveland, Emory, Donald and Darrel at home. Two sisters and four brothers, all living at Buffalo, W. Va., also survive.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at the Ramsey-Mohr funeral home at Delaware and burial will be made in Forest Glen Memorial park at Marion.

Whirlaway Needs $27,244 To Equal Record Earnings

Win in Today's Massachusetts Handicap Will Add $44,850.

BOSTON, July 15—Whirlaway may give the horse laugh to the so-wealthy Seabiscuit if he can change his stride and break near the top today in the $50,000-added Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs.

The four-year-old son of the English Derby-winning Blenheim II needs only $27,244 to equal the record earnings of $437,730 that Seabiscuit piled up during his six years of campaigning.

And he can get it today if he can outfoot seven rivals, of apparently much earlier "lick," to the wire for the $44,850 winner's share of the richest purse of the current season for handicap horses.

The long-tailed Whirly, owned by the wealthy Warren Wright, the Kentucky and Chicago horse-breeder, happens to be a stretch runner of great fame. But all the previous Massachusetts—seven in all—have been gained by thoroughbreds that possessed the ability of breaking fast from the box and maintaining their advantage to the wire.

Whirly is going to tangle with some real speed. Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons has Apache, latest challenger to three-year-old honors, right and ready. Then, too, Whirly is packing top weight of 130 pounds, and Sunny Jim's baby is lugging only 107. If Apache does not crowd Whirly, it could be Mrs. Parker Corning's Attention, or likely Emerson Woodward's New England favorite, Rounders, and then again there is a slight chance that the early-breaking Transfigure, owned by Texan John L. Sullivan, may last and burst home to take all.

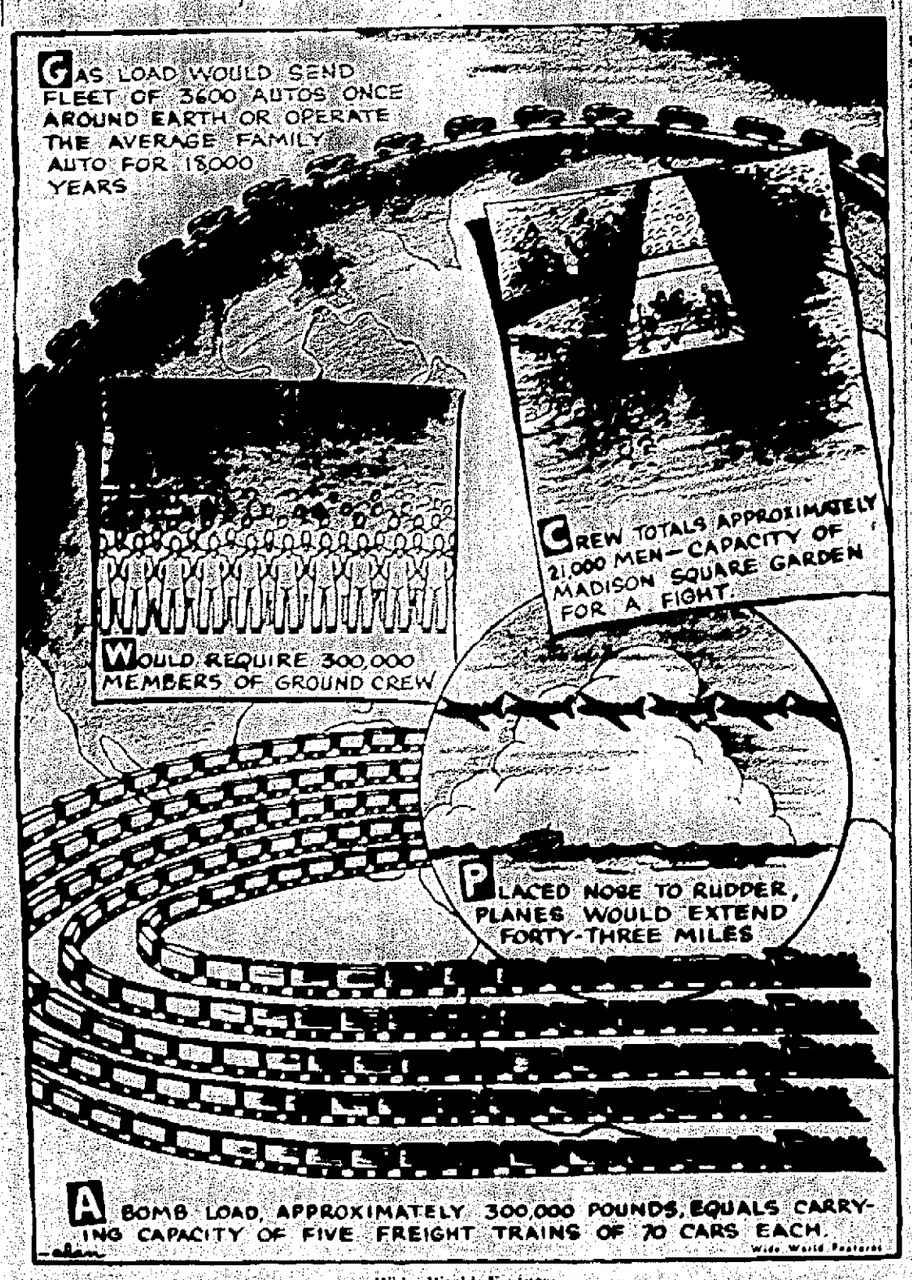
When 3,000 Bombers Go Raiding



GAS LOAD WOULD SEND FLEET OF 3600 AUTOS ONCE AROUND EARTH OR OPERATE THE AVERAGE FAMILY AUTO FOR 18000 YEARS
CREW TOTALS APPROXIMATELY 21,000 MEN—CAPACITY OF MADISON SQUARE GARDEN FOR A FIGHT.
WOULD REQUIRE 300,000 MEMBERS OF GROUND CREW
PLACED NOSE TO RUDDER, PLANES WOULD EXTEND FORTY-THREE MILES
A BOMB LOAD, APPROXIMATELY 300,000 POUNDS, EQUALS CARRYING CAPACITY OF FIVE FREIGHT TRAINS OF 70 CARS EACH.
Wide World Features

Even if you're accustomed to thinking of war operations in terms of hundreds of thousands or millions these days, there's something super-colossal about the idea of a mass raid involving 3,000 bombers—and that's what British and American military leaders have promised Germany. Reduced to everyday terms, here's what such a raid would mean in men, missiles and equipment. In addition, experts have figured that the cost—including planes lost, the expense of training pilots lost, and the gasoline and bombs used—would be approximately $50,000,000.

NEW SIMPLIFIED CODE

By International News Service

LONDON — A new simplified code of drill and training was introduced by the British war office to speed up training of new army recruits. The new plan consists chiefly of cutting out the formal parts of the drill and teaching the handling of weapons and other duties in ways that come most naturally and easy to recruits.

Jap U. S. Plane Target

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, July 15 — Following the successful bombing of Japanese cities by American planes, Nippon's 17,000-mile transportation system interlacing the empire's many islands, today takes on added importance as the target of future attacks.

Japan's chief railroad trunk line, on which its major political and industrial centers are situated, runs along the east coast of Honshu island. In its interior, this island is mountainous, with volcanic peaks and generally unsuitable for the construction of an extensive rail system. Hence, the nation's railway lines are limited for the most part to the coastal areas.

In terms of an American aerial offensive against Japan, a National Geographic Society bulletin points out, this means that an effective bombing raid could disrupt a major portion of the entire system almost immediately.

Dependent on Rail Lines

The initial U. S. raid was directed at Tokyo, Yokohama, Kobe, and Nagoye—all located within a radius of 300 miles, as the airplane flies, in the southern section of Honshu Island.

A scattered, multi-island unit, the Japanese empire is completely dependent upon an efficient transportation system. Conveyance of passengers and freight between its widely segregated areas must be effected by ferry service or, as in the case of its newest project, by underwater tunnel.

This tunnel, which is reported to have been opened April 13, 1942, links Honshu and Kyushu Island, just to the south. Described as two and a half miles long, with double track, it is considered especially important to the Japanese war effort because of its location in the center of the vitally important industrial region.

The bulletin pointed out that with three of her ferry points and all of her main rail terminals thus situated, bombing attacks on Japan could be concentrated on an area with a radius of approximately 200 miles.

Introduced by Perry

Admiral Perry introduced rail transportation into Japan in 1852 at Yokohama, where he set up a model line on the ocean beach. By 1872 an 18-mile line was completed along the coastal section, thereby connecting Yokohama and Tokyo. A few years later, following the merger of separate lines, a single trunk system was established and extended to Kobe.

Although British capital built the first Japanese railways, United States equipment and mechanical ideas have kept them in operation. In 1938-39 more than 125,000,000,000 passengers were carried on government lines alone. As an industrial enterprise, the state railways employed more than 227,000 persons in 1937, while private companies hired over 40,000 workers.

The Johnstown flood of 1889 took 2,235 lives and caused damage estimated at $10,000,000. It was the worst peacetime disaster this country has ever experienced.

Washington, the smallest state west of Iowa, has a larger area than all of the New England states combined with Delaware added.

KENTON, July 15—Thirty-six young men who passed final physical examinations at Columbus two weeks ago yesterday afternoon boarded a Big Four train for Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., where they will be assigned to training units.

On Tuesday morning, the Hardin county selective service board supervised "screen" physical examinations of more than 100 prospective draftees, many of whom will be in the next induction call. The board clerk said the men were in much better physical condition than the run-of-mine groups previously screen-tested.

STOCK MARKET UP SLIGHTLY

Fractional Gains Are General; Dealings Tapered Off After Lively Start.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 15 — The stock market today carried over some of the rising power displayed near yesterday's close.

Fractional gains were general and in a few instances were extended to a point or more, with some fading back from the initial levels. Dealings tapered off after a fairly lively start.

Dow Chemical moved up around 2 points and Johns-Manville a point or so. Modestly ahead most of the time were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, Western Union, American Can and J. C. Penney.

Farm staple markets were watched closely as a barometer of inflationary sentiment as congress continued to wrestle with the legislative snarl over parity versus sub-parity prices for government-owned commodities.

Revival of inflation psychology, market analysts contended, has been the major factor in the recent favorable action of the stock list in face of the adverse turn of events in Russia.

A commentary on trends in the building industry was the report of Dun & Bradstreet that construction permits issued in June were 56.4 per cent under the totals for June, 1941.

The aggregate for 215 cities was placed at $59,171,130, a drop of 25.5 per cent from May and compared with $135,819,086 in June, 1941.

Railways Handle Traffic With Wartime Efficiency

WASHINGTON—(Wide World)—American railroads are rolling into this war much wiser and far better prepared to handle traffic for both military and commercial service than they were in the last one.

"It won't happen again!" you hear the bosses say when they recall the war-traffic snarls of 1918. Still they know they must deal with possible tie-ups in gas and rubber rationing forces high-way traffic to the rails.

Today trains run faster, load more freight, pull heavier loads and operate on split-second schedules.

Operators report this with a degree of caution—knowing the jam they could get into if suddenly they had to take on a large share of the traffic of 5,650,000 motor trucks and 27,000,000 passenger automobiles. They are trying to get priority on materials for 120,080 more freight cars this year and 150,000 in 1943; many more locomotives and at least 500 new passenger cars. With material shortages bedeviling the war production board, these wants may not all be met.

So, says John J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, someday soon shippers may not be able to get just the sort of car or service they want on the day they want it, and travelers, in large numbers, may not be able to get the accommodations they desire.

Terrific Traffic

At present the passenger prospect is the toughest. Roads report a 30 per cent increase in public demand and an over-all 40 per cent use of extra-cost accommodations by the armed forces. Traffic is becoming terrific in the larger population centers.

Hence, rail officials earnestly ask the public to cooperate in scheduling trips, and to forego week-end travel if possible. They have discontinued special train service to conventions, sports events, recreation spots and the like.

Meanwhile, the freight load on railways has increased 80 per cent since war began in Europe in 1939. All must remember, says Joseph B. Eastman, war transportation director, that Uncle Sam is the most important shipper in the world today.

The railroads are handling more ton-miles of freight than they did at the 1918 war peak and doing it with 564,136 fewer freight cars. They moved one million tons of freight one mile every minute last year.

Remember the old wisecrack about "being as slow as a freight train?" Well, these modern-day engines hump along at 60 miles an hour dragging 125 loaded cars behind them. The mile-long freight is commonplace whereas 20 years ago a 37-car train was a dinger and did about 11 miles an hour including stops.

Railroad men say they are much more concerned about their ability to move commercial freight than they are about war traffic which, after all has been only about 12 per cent of the national total. Eastman says car-loadings may reach 1,000,000 a week by October, which would be about the weekly average of the boom days of the 20s.

The rails are now [illegible] prepared to handle a 10 per cent increase in freight with present equipment, but Eastman says he expects a 20 per cent rise in national production before 1943 and a 12 to 15 per cent jump in car-loadings.

May Ration Space

Yes, freight is going to move as usual—but there may be a great deal of inconvenience and space may have to be rationed in a way which will mean non-essentials will suffer long delays. So Eastman has begun to cut out the frills such as for example the practice of shipping canned goods from Chicago to Buffalo and backtracking the same kind of provender from New York to Illinois. Out goes the business of shipping steel from Birmingham to St. Louis, thence back to points in Mississippi just so it can stay the payload of the railroad on which it started. From now on this sort of traffic must be shared with the most direct lines.

Meantime, the tempo of freight movement has been pushed to the ceiling. Overnight freight between Jersey City and Pittsburgh travels the 525 miles in 765 minutes. The merchandise special leaving Chicago for Memphis every night does 527 miles in 770 minutes, and some passenger trains cover the 226 miles between Washington and New York in 215 minutes.

Just as an idea of what freights are hauling: It would require 32,000 five-ton trucks — a column nearly 1,000 miles long — to carry on the highways an ordinary day's tonnage on just one division of one railroad serving Pittsburgh.

The roads hope to handle war traffic without serious halt to commercial traffic. In the first five months of 1941, they transported 1,500,000 troops and more than 19,000,000 tons of army freight over more ton-miles than for a like period during the last war and did it with 623,000 fewer cars.

Maximum daily requirements for a service camp of 1,000,000 men, officials say, can be shipped in less than 600 carloads a day. M. J. Gormley of the Association of American Railroads says the entire war effort may not require more than 50,000 carloads of freight a week, or less than 8 per cent of the weekly carloadings in 1939.

3,000 Cars a Day

Approximately 3,000 freight cars are rolling every day to keep up with the armed forces—but there is a total of 1,727,614 freight cars and there will be 1,800,000 soon if the government grants priority to build new ones.

Railway men say they can transport an entire army division (18,000 men) 1,000 miles in 25 hours if pinched, and can move a train-load of freight from coast to coast in 10 days. So far in this war they have carried 3,000,000 troop-passengers without mishap during a single normal week-end.

WHEAT PRICES FALL AFTER HOUSE ACTION

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 15 — Wheat prices declined today following House approval of a senate proposal to allow sales of government wheat at prices below parity. Other grains followed the bread cereal downward.

The action of the House surprised many traders because the House previously had been firm in its demand that no sales be permitted below 100 per cent of parity.

The Senate proposal had the support of President Roosevelt.

Approval of the Senate's measure meant that 125,000,000 bushels of wheat could be sold for feeding purposes at not less than about 83 cents a bushel. Under the House's previous measure, providing for sales at not less than parity for wheat, the minimum figure was about $1.35 a bushel.

Treasury Report

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 15 — The position of the treasury July 13: Receipts $25,299,112.57; expenditures $292,096,272.24; net balance $2,275,-168,825.40; working balance included $1,512,722,854.22.

206,234 loaded freight cars were stacked up for days on end at eastern ports, plants and military posts for lack of ships and warehouses to receive their cargoes.

You see, every hot shot in Washington in those days had a pocketful of little red war priority tags and everytime something for which he personally was responsible was ready, he sent it along regardless of the need, storage facilities or ship-space. There was no one to decide which priority had priority over the other priorities.

Now no one, no matter how important, can move a pig until he gets a green light from Hopkins' outfit—and as a result, officials say, there exists [illegible] a shipside freight "mess" of more than five days.

Former Marion Teacher Serves Meals to Pupils

A former Marion kindergarten teacher, Mrs. Beatrice Secord, first grade teacher in the Newman school at Mansfield, has inaugurated in her school work an unusual and highly successful project which is meeting with praise from civic and educational organizations in that city and community.

The new project is that of serving breakfasts to approximately 20 youngsters whose backwardness in school, she believes, is partially due to malnutrition or possibly a psychological twist. The project was inspired when a timid little first grade pupil told her teacher one morning about two months ago that she had come to school without breakfast. This led Mrs. Secord to wonder if some of her backward pupils might be hungry too, so she began preparing breakfast for them. Now she has 20 guests for breakfast every week-day morning, and every one of them has gained from one to two and one-half pounds in the weeks the plan has been in operation.

Mrs. Secord calls her pupils the junior class and in addition to their study of first grade work has added extra-curricular activities to help them build confidence. They have visited the airport, railroad stations, parks and other places in the city areas that help youngsters to learn about a modern world.

Mrs. Secord conducted a kindergarten here for six years before going to Mansfield. She received her bachelor's degree in education at Ohio university in 1940.

Since starting her breakfast club she has served more than 1,300 breakfasts. Many groups and individuals are interested in her work and she has appeared as guest speaker before a number of church groups. Her talks center on the subjects "Nutrition" and "Nutrition Work Among Undernourished Children in Schools."

COLLEGES FOR JAP "EVACS"

By International News Service

PHILADELPHIA — Japanese-American college students who have been evacuated from Pacific coast schools will be able to continue their studies in inland colleges through private agencies working in cooperation with the government. The American Friends Service Committee, in conjunction with the War Relocation Authority, has planned a conference of educators to consider the problems of the Japanese-Americans and formulate guidance policies. It was estimated that at least 500,000 of private funds will be needed to aid in the [illegible] project.

New Compound Is Aid To Recovery From Infections

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Wide World Science Editor

MINNEAPOLIS — The value of adding urea to sulfathiazole to speed the recovery from infections has been demonstrated strikingly at the University of Minnesota. Urea is a nitrogen compound naturally present in most living tissues.

The demonstration was made on 29 persons with infections which were unusual because they were bilateral—that is, the same on each side of the body. Each had the infection either on both hands, both legs or both sides of the head.

Sulfathiazole alone was used on one side. On the other, urea and the sulfa drug were combined. This made the test almost perfect from a medical point of view. Furthermore, the urea combination was always used on the worst side. It was in three forms—wet packs, powder and ointments.

The result was marked speeding up of recovery on the sides where urea was used. In all except five cases. The explanation for the failures is not entirely clear. The five may have had infections containing a form of staphylococcus germs known to be resistant to sulfa drugs.

The Minnesota work was based upon a cue furnished by studies of Major Hall G. Holder, medical corps, U. S. A., and Dr. Eaton M. Mackay of the Scripps Metabolic Clinic, La Jolla, Calif., who for some time have been investigating advantages of mixing urea with sulfa drugs for contaminated and infected wounds.

The Minnesotans wished to find out especially the reason why urea would aid a sulfa drug, and their work indicated that the urea neutralizes pus and other wound products which inhibit sulfa drug action.

The Minnesota work was done by Doctors William G. Clark, of the zoology department, and Ernest A. Strakosch of the department of dermatology, after laboratory studies by Doctors Henry M. Tschuchlya and Daniel Tannenberg of the department of bacteriology, had shown that in test tubes urea actually neutralizes the sulfa inhibitors.

LIKE HARMONICAS

By International News Service

PHILADELPHIA — The mouth organ, favorite musical instrument of the doughboy of World War I, has come into its own once again, only to be sadly curtailed by priorities. The quartermaster depot recently ordered 12,000 harmonicas for post exchange sales, but there aren't enough to go 'round. Of the four factories that opened when the war stopped the supply from Germany and Japan, three have been closed by priorities . . . so the soldiers have taken to guitars and banjos.

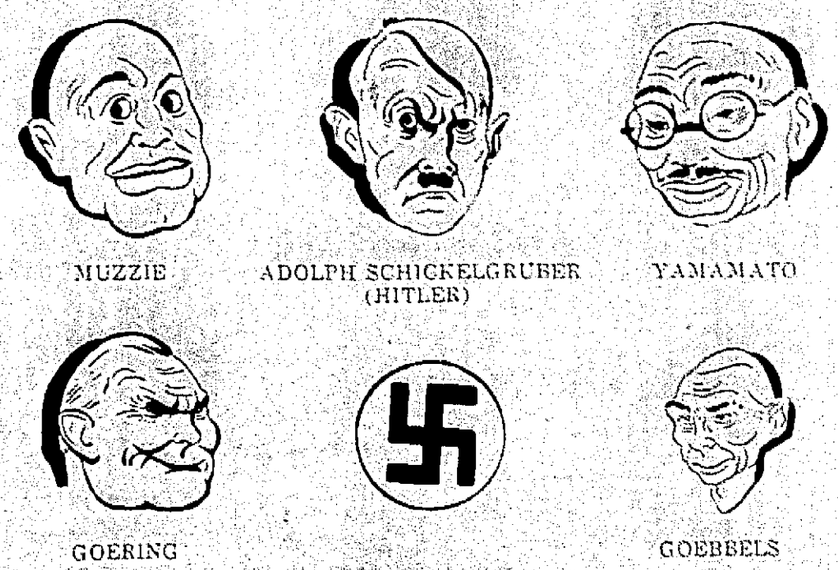
MARION COUNTY'S SHARE IS $296,000

The July quota of Marion county will be $296,000. In May and June Marion county residents "went over the top" by a good margin. EVERY possible nickel, dime and quarter will be needed to make up the nation's goal of one billion dollars for July. Get behind the boys in the fighting forces. Buy War Bonds and Stamps until it hurts, and don't wait to be asked, but insist in taking your change in stamps.



CARRY YOUR WAR SAVINGS STAMP BOOK AT ALL TIMES

By carrying your War Savings Stamp Book at all times it will keep reminding you to buy more and more stamps. If you have some one in the armed forces, you will want to do your share in keeping them equipped with the proper tools to fight with. Even a 10c stamp will buy 5 cartridges. A 25c stamp will buy 12 bandages, and so on. Buy more stamps, buy them any place, but Buy War Saving Stamps Every Day.

Weapons in Germs

The fears that are frequently expressed, of a secret weapon consisting of the spraying of germs by enemy action, are not based on very sound or extensive knowledge. Modern hygiene is competent to protect both the civilian population and the armed forces against most of the types of infection now known—in fact it is part of the duty of the Sanitary Corps to carry out measures of such protection.

In 1880 it might have been possible to infect a camp or a city water supply with Asiatic cholera or typhoid fever but now the water supply is automatically tested and preventive measures are put in operation, so that even if an enemy infected the supply, this would not constitute a menace.

The dream frequently exploited of an enemy dropping bombs loaded with germs gets very vague when it begins to describe what kind of germs they are. It would be possible to infect the ground with the germs of tetanus or lockjaw, but all the armed forces are protected against this by the use of toxoid.

We know very little about the conditions under which such germs as those that cause pneumonia are propagated and where or how they rest before infection starts. We probably have as much pneumonia around us all the time now as it is possible to have and loosing additional carriers or additional concentrations of dust containing pneumonia germs would not add any menace to life.

Besides that, scattering germs over the earth for a successful operation would have to take into consideration the climate and the kind of earth on which the germs were sprayed. For instance, it would be possible to spray a fungus called coccidioides and this might infect both the armed forces and the civilian population, but the trouble is this particular fungus only grows in one very restricted spot on the face of the United States and probably on the face of the globe, which is the San Joaquin Valley in California, and it wouldn't do any harm to spray it on the ground in Australia and the Western Front because it would die out.

The spread of such diseases as typhus or the plague depends on the use of animal carriers but here again the sanitation department is constantly on the alert to see that troops are deloused and that rats are controlled.

So, so far as any germs known to us now are concerned, the idea of using them as a secret weapon is completely impractical. If it were possible to use the last-discovered human fungus disease which is about 90 per cent fatal (histoplasmosis), we might have some reason to fear, but so far this fungus has been found only in dying human beings and in one dog. It is found in dust and in the ground in a good many parts of the United States, but to date the number of cases that have been affected total only 50, so it does not appear to be an agent which is sufficiently communicable to worry about.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. A. R.—Is is all right to use saccharin to sweeten coffee during the sugar rationing or is it harmful in any way?

Answer: Saccharin is not harmful and will sweeten coffee with very much higher potency than sugar itself. A great many people have used saccharin over many years without having any harm done to them.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

MY OWN taut nerves relaxed at Katharine's capitulation. I knew that I would have no more trouble with her. When a spirited, mentally alert woman of authority yields to necessity after consulting her own common sense, she always does a thorough job of it, and Katharine proved the truth of the rule after her promise to me.

She obediently ate the light breakfast I had ordered for her, and as meekly swallowed the sedative after I had tucked her snugly into my bed. A few minutes after I had kissed her and opened the window she was fast asleep.

I telephoned Dicky's breakfast order and mine to room service, then tiptoed to the camouflaged door leading to the other suite and knocked lightly upon it.

When Dicky opened the door I spoke in muted voice.

"She's completely under," I said.

"I'll try not to fall over my feet," he whispered back, then gathered up his personal belongings and the bedding he had taken from my suite the night before.

"Please go to the living room," I said. "I'll close the doors after you."

He was stowing away some of the bedding in the closet, and as he closed the closet door he put the low-voiced question, "Did you have any trouble with her?"

"Not a bit," I returned. "She protested a little, but—"

"Probably too worn out to have much fight left in her," Dicky commented. "And I've always contended," he added with a sly grin, "that you've mistaken your career. You should have been a tiger trainer. Witness the state of cowed docility to which you have reduced me!"

"Thank you for telling me," I retorted. "I never would have noticed the change in you otherwise, nor would anyone else."

"Touche!" he murmured. "And now may a thoroughly cowed but tarnished beast be permitted to whimper timidly. When do we eat?"

"Whenever room service pleases," I returned placidly. "I telephoned the order as soon as possible and told them to make all haste."

Appeased By Breakfast

"Which probably means half an hour, at least," he said with true masculine pessimism when hunger is concerned, but it was less than half that time before the waiter brought in our breakfast trays and Dicky forgot his grievance.

"They may be slow, but they sure do you well in this joint," he admitted, and I forbore to tell him the truth—that the service was also prompt.

"Yes, they do," I agreed, then put a question of which I needed the answer for guidance.

"How soon are you going over to the Underwoods?" I asked.

"Immediately after this breakfast and a smoke," he said. "You know what the Chief is. He wants action, and he also wants Lil and Miss Whitlock to get on their way to the farmhouse as soon as possible, especially now that Katharine is here."

"Is he going to send them by train or by motor car?"

"By train, I believe, with a guard. He needs that armored car here."

Rebels at Delay

I looked at my wrist watch, and remembered my railway time table.

"They can't leave before this afternoon," I said, "and if I know Lillian, she'll want to see Katharine as will Miss Whitlock, and discuss the children's routine with them."

"For the love of Pete!" Dicky exploded. "Miss Whitlock is a capable trained nurse, and Lil knows how to manage Mother-like nobody's business. Why should they want to chew the fat before they go?"

"Nevertheless, they will," I told him imperturbably, "and as there will be no holding Katherine once she awakens, I think that to be on the safe side you would better ask Lillian and Miss Whitlock to come over here for luncheon.

"Father can arrange the details of their transportation, but tell him from me that the nerves of both Lillian and Katharine are strung so tightly, we would better all humor their whims as much as we possibly can."

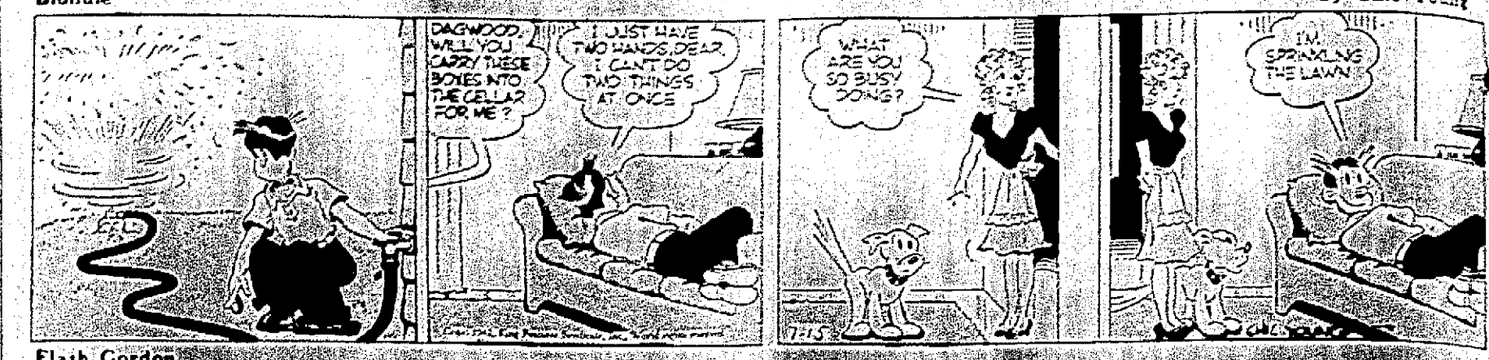
Blondie — By Chic Young



DAGWOOD, WILL YOU CARRY THESE BOXES INTO THE CELLAR FOR ME?
I JUST HAVE TWO HANDS, DEAR. I CAN'T DO TWO THINGS AT ONCE
WHAT ARE YOU SO BUSY DOING?
I'M SPRINKLING THE LAWN

Flash Gordon

I HEREBY APPOINT YOU AMBASSADOR TO QUEEN TIGRA OF FORESTIA... BE CAREFUL YOU DON'T MEET THE MYSTERIOUS FATE OF MY OTHER MESSENGERS, FLASH.
DON'T WORRY ABOUT US, BARIN. WE'LL SOLVE THAT MYSTERY FOR YOU.
WE MUST BE NEAR THE GIANT FORESTS. OH, FLASH, IT'S FUN TO BE ADVENTURING TOGETHER AGAIN!
OF COURSE, I ONLY HOPE IT DOESN'T GET SO DANGEROUS THAT I WISH I HADN'T BROUGHT YOU
SKILFULLY FLASH SETS HIS AMPHIBIAN ROCKET DOWN ON THE MIGHTY RIVER THAT LEADS INTO QUEEN TIGRA'S FOREST COUNTRY

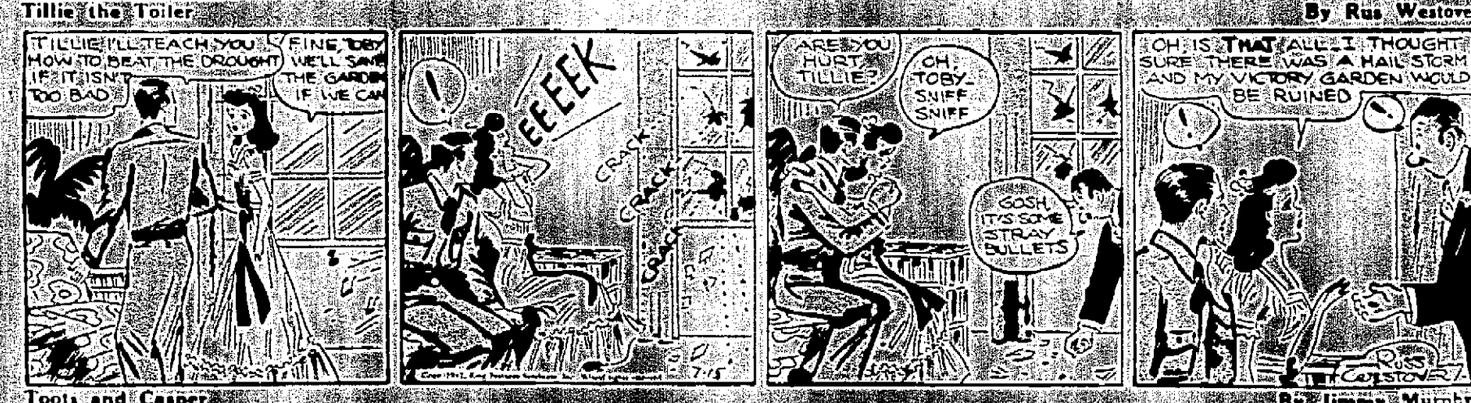
Tim Tyler — By Lyman Young

SEE, TRIXIE—THOSE PACKING CASES CONTAIN IMPORTED SUBMARINE PARTS BROUGHT HERE AND ASSEMBLED BY AGENTS OF THE OCTOPUS IN THIS UNDERGROUND PLANT!
IT'S A MONSTROUS PLOT AGAINST ALL OUR SHIPPING!
THE LIGHTHOUSE ON THE REEF ABOVE US IS—
TIM, THEY'VE DISCOVERED US! WE'VE GOT TO GET AWAY FAST—
BY NOW THE REEF IS ALIVE WITH ARMED SPIES! QUICK—IN THIS WAY—
THAT MUST LEAD TO THE ABANDONED LIGHTHOUSE TOWER ABOVE
SH—H—VOICES FROM ABOVE—

Thimble Theater

I'M SUPPOSED TO BE A SPY. I'M NOT SUPPOSED TO KNOW POPEYE
GOOD-BYE, POPEYE. WE ALL ARE PROUD OF YOU—WATCH YOUR STEP IN WASHINGTON
OKAY, AUNT JONES
TAKE CARE OF ME WARSHIP WHILE I'M GONE, OSCAR. I HAV'A HUNCH WE WILL NEED HER
AYE, SIR
I'M A SPY. I'LL PRETEND I NEVER SAW HIM BEFORE
GOOD-BYE, STRANGER
GOOD-BYE, STRANGER
YES, GOOD-BYE, STRANGER
STRANGER?
SMACK
SMACK
SMACK

Tillie the Toiler — By Russ Westover



TILLIE, I'LL TEACH YOU HOW TO BEAT THE DROUGHT IF IT ISN'T TOO BAD
FINE, TOBY WE'LL SAVE THE GARDEN IF WE CAN EEEEK
ARE YOU HURT, TILLIE?
OH, TOBY—SNIFF—SNIFF
GOSH, IT'S SOME STRAY BULLETS
OH IS THAT ALL I THOUGHT SURE THERE WAS A HAIL STORM AND MY VICTORY GARDEN WOULD BE RUINED

Toots and Casper — By Jimmy Murphy

I CHECKED UP AT CASPER'S HOUSE TO MAKE SURE EVERYTHING IS OKAY WHILE THEY'RE OUT OF TOWN!
WHY DIDN'T YOU TELL ME YOU'VE THE KEY TO THEIR HOUSE, COLONEL HOOFER?
SOPHIE, IT WON'T DO YOU ANY GOOD TO SNOOP—THEY'VE GOT ALL THEIR DESKS AND CLOTHES LOCKED UP!
I CAN OPEN THOSE LOCKS WITH A HAT-PIN—I'M DYING TO SEE JUST HOW MANY CLOTHES SHE HAS!
THERE'S BUTTERCUP AS WE LAST SAW HIM—I WONDER WHAT HE LOOKS LIKE NOW THAT HE'S GROWING UP?
SOPHIE, IF YOU'RE GONNA SNOOP, BE QUICK ABOUT IT! I'D DIE IF ANYONE CAUGHT US!
IT'LL BE INTERESTING TO SEE BUTTERCUP AGAIN NOW THAT HE CAN WALK AND TALK

Annie Rooney — By Brandon Walsh

WHAT KIND OF A GAME ARE THE MEN PLAYING, ANNIE? PEEKING THROUGH THE LITTLE GLASS AN' DRIVING STICKS IN THE GROUND—??
IT'S NOT A GAME—THEY'RE WORKIN'—THEY'RE GONNA BUILD A LOTTA GREAT BIG HOUSES FOR THOUSANDS AN' THOUSANDS OF SOLDIERS TO LIVE IN
GOODY! GOODY! NOW WE'LL HEAR THE BAND PLAYING AN' WATCH THE SOLDIERS PARADING EVERY DAY—
NO—WE WON'T SEE THE PARADES—'CAUSE WE WON'T BE HERE—MR. OLIVER GAVE THIS WHOLE PLACE TO THE SOLDIERS—US KIDS HAVE GOTTA MOVE AWAY FROM HERE

Bringing Up Father — By George McManus

I'VE GOTTA SNEAK OUT BEFORE THAT FLY-BRAINED OLD BUTLER SEES ME—I ALWAYS LOSE ME APPETITE WHEN I SEE HIM—I'LL HAVE BREAKFAST IN TOWN!
HE CAN'T COOK—BESIDES—IT IS A RELIEF NOT TO SEE HIM—
I SUPPOSE THE FAT-HEAD IS TRYING TO FIND OUT WHAT HAPPENED TO ME—
OH—I BEG PARDON—SIR—BUT YOU MUST BE GETTIN' ABSENT-MINDED—YOU FORGOT TO EAT YOUR BREAKFAST—I BROUGHT IT DOWN TO YOU—SIR—SOME SERVICE—I'LL SAY—
